

WISCONSIN GOOD ENOUGH

Duane Ross Not Impressed With Pacific Coast Country—Meets Old Friends in Portland.

Duane Ross returned last Friday night from a trip through the west, a part of the time being spent with his brother Hanford at Helena, Mont. The latter gentleman is employed as a passenger engineer on one of the western roads. Duane made two visits to Portland and other towns along the Pacific coast, going there with a view of investing should conditions warrant, but he was very much disappointed with the country and is well satisfied to get back to Wisconsin. While at Portland he met a number of former Stevens Point and Portage county residents, among them being Dan. W. Altenburg, Frank Maine, John Moylan, F. L. Dille, John Duggan and Chas. Page. All of them are well and prosperous. Mr. Page has grown very wealthy since going to that section a few years ago and is now ranked among the millionaires. Mr. Altenburg is also numbered among the extensive owners of timber land in that country. L. C. Hoeftel, a former conductor on the Wisconsin Central, has recently engaged in the raising of chickens some eighteen miles distant from Portland and the venture promises to be a profitable one.

A. C. Gassmann of Amherst and L. E. Wentworth of Buena Vista spent part of yesterday in this city while on their way home from a three weeks' trip through the western country. They visited Mr. Gassmann's sister near Livingston, Mont., and also spent a few days with the Purica families in South Dakota. The balance of the time was devoted to looking over various tracts of farming land that were offered for sale, but the Portage county residents were not fully impressed with the conditions in that section and have concluded that they will continue to reside among us. Mr. Wentworth was laid up for a few days at Livingston, but otherwise the trip was greatly enjoyed.

Former Stevens Painter Married.

Miss Myrtle Robinson and Harry Moulton, manager of the duplicating department of the Underwood Typewriter Co., were married in Chicago last February, but public announcement of the event was not made until a few days ago. The bride is a step-daughter of D. I. Sickelsteel, one of our prominent local attorneys, and was a resident of Stevens Point for a few years, when she was known as Myrtle Sickelsteel. For the past three years the young lady has lived in Chicago, where she held a very desirable position as stenographer. Her husband moved to Chicago from Joliet a few years ago and now fills the above noted important position with the Underwood company. Many friends of the bride at her former home here will be pleased to extend very well wishes.

Bridge Work Commenced.

Work long delayed, that of re-planking the Wisconsin river bridge, has been commenced. One year ago last fall or winter a contract was let to the Week Lumber Co. for sufficient hardwood planking to cover the bridge, but the kind that they were able to secure, after much correspondence and considerable time, proved unsatisfactory to the mayor and board of public works. After a carload had been received, further shipments were stopped and nothing definite was done until shortly before the administration changed hands, when a contract was let to the Clifford Lumber Co. It has been difficult to secure the kind, size, etc., of plank desired, hence the delay until this time. The work of putting down the new flooring upon the bridge, it is believed, will not materially delay traffic.

Ennor Goes With Holmes.

The Show World of last Saturday, published in Chicago, contained the following relative to a well known Stevens Pointer: John Ennor leaves Chicago Sunday night to open next week at the Majestic in Detroit, for an engagement for the summer on Coney Holmes' circuit. He has remained in Chicago possibly longer than any act which has ever appeared here and for forty weeks has played in this city, breaking all records for long-time runs in the vaudeville field. Mr. Ennor has presented a series of monologue travelogues which were gathered after years of traveling, and are entirely original. He has played some Chicago houses as many as four times and return dates have been the rule rather than the exception. Upon return engagements he presented a complete change of program and he has such an inexhaustible fund of material that he could offer a different travelogue for fifty nights hand running if he desired. Mr. Ennor claims to be the pioneer of clean vaudeville.

Married Thursday Noon.

Miss Clara Reichelt, of this city, and Edward Rath, of Almond, were married at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Reichelt, 117 Blaine street, at high noon on Thursday last. Rev. R. Katerndahl officiating. The young couple were attended by Miss Clara and John Rath, sister and brother of the groom. The bride is a popular young lady of the South Side, her father being a well known cabinet-maker, and the groom is one of Almond's promising young farmers, a son of Mr. and Mrs. David Rath of that town, where they will take up their residence after a short wedding tour to Chicago, for which city they left that night. A reception to relatives and friends was held throughout the afternoon and evening.

Invests Thousands.

W. E. Allen, former proprietor of the Stevens Point business college, but now of Spokane, Wash., sent The Gazette late papers from that city, in which the fact is noted that he disposed of real estate to the value of $64,230 during the previous thirty days. During the same period Mr. Allen also invested many thousands in city, suburban and farm property. On Monday of last week the voters of Spokane by a three-fifths majority of only 18 votes, decided to sell public park bonds in the sum of $1,000,000. They evidently "do things" in that growing city.

Sprinkling Privilege Curtailed.

J. Rollin Gray, superintendent of the Stevens Point Water Co. has notified local patrons that the privilege of sprinkling lawns is limited to two hours each day. Strictly speaking, this isn't the official notification, but the other hours allowed—from 5 to 7 a. m.—suggests a placard displayed in one of Stevens Point's business places: "A camel can go seven days without drinking, but who the dash wants to be a camel?" It is hardly expected that the average householder will roll out of the hay at the early hour of five in order to give his lawn a bath, so, practically, he has only between 6 and 8 in the evening. There is much complaint, but what are you going to do?

Delayed by Wrecks.

Emil Schmitt, of Olympia, Wash., arrived in the city last Friday evening, coming here in response to a telegram announcing the death of his sister, Mrs. V. Betlach. He expected that the funeral would take place Friday morning, and would have reached here in time had he not been delayed by three wrecks enroute, the last one being on the Soo, between Hewitt and Auburn, Friday afternoon, and No. 2, due at 2:55, did not reach here until 6:30. Mr. Schmitt, who is a former young resident of this city, is now married, having a wife and two children, and has of late been engaged as manager of a shingle mill. He returned to the west today after visiting relatives here, with his parents and sisters at Merrill and sister at Grand Rapids.

Lost Their Only Child.

A telegram received here last Monday morning brought the sad intelligence that Joseph, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Conroy, had died the evening before at the home of Mr. Conroy's mother in Chicago. Mrs. Conroy and the little boy left here a month ago to visit relatives at Aurora and a week or two ago went to Chicago. The first intimation of the baby's illness was received Friday evening by Mr. Conroy, who boarded the limited one when he passed away. Joseph was a year old last November and was an unusually bright and sweet dispositioned child. Since Mr. Conroy came here last year to accept the position of manager of the Wall Paper Mills the family had rooms at F. R. Roe's and took their meals at Eugene Tack's, an especial favorite in that neighborhood and his loss will be deeply grieved. The sympathy of Mr. and Mrs. Conroy's many friends here is extended them in the loss of their only child.

SCHOOL BOARD MEETING THE SPRINKLING ORDINANCE

Several Important Matters Acted On at Last Monday Evening's Session.

The May monthly meeting of the Board of Education was held at the First ward school building last Monday evening, all members being present except F. E. Boyer. Application for the position of supervisor of music was read from Miss Marion Johnson, now a teacher in Nebraska. Cora B. Ising, who is now employed in the Antigo schools, wishes to become assistant in the local school for the deaf and asks a salary of $650 per year. Miss Leda M. Barrows asked that her salary as clerk to Supt. Davis be increased from $8 to $10 per week. Written resignations were read from Ida M. Edwards, Eudora Cook, Harrison Woodham, all teachers in the High school building, and Edna Cruiger, principal and teacher in the Third ward school. It was also understood that Miss Hinkley, now teaching in the High school, would decline to accept re-appointment for next year. Clerk Blood reported that he had not received contracts from Miss Selbert or Miss MacNeess. The former is supervisor of drawing in the schools and the latter young lady is teacher of the deaf department. The clerk was instructed to request Miss MacNeess to fill out her contract at once.

H. D. White presented a bill for $15.50 for tuning and repairing a piano at the High school. He accompanied the statement with a letter intimating that after the piano had been properly tuned by him that some boy student had tampered with the instrument and broken some of the strings. This accusation called forth the wrath of Supt. Davis, who stated that he would give $25 for proof that the piano had been tampered with. Mr. Davis further said that the strings had become crystallized and therefore the piano could not be brought to what is known as concert pitch. The bill for Mr. White's services was allowed.

The special committee appointed at a recent meeting to procure another piano for the High school assembly room, stated that four or five instruments had been offered them, but suggested that a piano be rented until the close of school in June. They were given authority to rent the instrument.

Clerk Blood reported that he had received the sum of $28.44 for the sale of old seats, junk, for tuition, etc., which sum was turned over to the treasurer.

Supt. Davis called attention to the law in regard to the certification of teachers, which will go into effect July 1st. It provides that holders of second grade certificates must attend summer school for six weeks and receive credits in at least two studies. Holders of third grade certificates must take an examination in various branches before a new certificate can be given them. Mr. Davis said that the time is coming when all teachers will be paid for twelve months in the year and will be required to perform a specified amount of work during the summer months. A number of schools have already adopted this idea. The superintendent was instructed to follow the law in regard to giving certificates to teachers.

Mr. Davis stated that he had written between 200 and 300 letters of inquiry to secure teachers for various vacancies in the city schools and hoped to make the necessary selections within a week or ten days. He asked that some supplementary reading be provided for the lower grades.

The board of public works served formal notice that repairs or renewals would have to be made to sidewalks on the east side of the High school building and east side of the Second ward grounds.

The clerk was instructed to advertise for coal for next year's use. The committee on teachers recommended that positions be offered Misses Myrtle Rogers, Eva Koehl, Alice Leahy and Nina Chenevert for work in the grades. These young ladies have been teaching in the schools for the past year, but their names were not included in the formal report made at last month's meeting.

The board will buy supplementary reading for use in the first and second grades, the list price of which amounts to $39.45, and will also purchase four dozen pencils recommended by Supt. Davis.

Pres. Young stated that the board had adopted a good system as far as the bookkeeping methods were concerned, but there is no way of knowing whether deliveries are made of all articles bought, or whether or not they are up to grade. He suggested that the principals be furnished with slips which they can fill out and file with the superintendent. He further suggested that teachers should notify the superintendent when in need of supplies and order the required material through him. Mr. Davis suggested that orders be sent to the chairman of the supply committee on some certain day of each month. The various ideas were referred to the clerk and superintendent.

Reference was made to the case of Chas. Worzalla, who last week paid something over $17 for neglecting to send his children to school. Mr. Davis stated that three others were listed for prosecution on a similar charge and action is likely to be taken within a few days.

Because of the probable large increase in the High school enrollment next year a committee consisting of Pres. Young, Supt. Davis, Clements, Bruce and Shumway, was appointed to suggest some arrangement for providing for the necessary conditions. The board then adjourned subject to call of the president.

Marriage License.

County Clerk Bourn has issued a marriage license to Michael Sibula of Pike Lake and Julia Zelinski of Sharon.

MAYOR WALTERS NOTES DISAPPROVAL OF PROPOSED LAW REGARDING SPRINKLING OF WALKS—WARNING AND SUGGESTIONS.

Mayor Walters wishes us to state that he has vetoed the ordinance on sprinkling the streets before sweeping for the reason that it proved impractical, and also wishes us to state that he was responsible for the presentation of this ordinance. Dr. von Neupert simply presenting it on the ed of the dirt and the ordinance seemed innocent enough, as one of the aldermen remarked; but the public can rest assured that from this on all such legislation will be laid on the table for a month's consideration.

We were also requested to inform any uninformed that it is not proposed to use any of the city's funds to improve the roads outside of the city limits; nor is it proposed to accept of Mr. Mallick's or any other proposition until the same has been thoroughly investigated and the facts regarding costs are reduced to cold figures.

There has been some agitation in certain parts regarding the dog tax but the mayor is willing to shoulder the responsibility. Ald. McDonald presented the ordinance on request. A goodly number of our people felt there were altogether too many useless curs in the city and it is at these the law is aimed. Anyone with a valuable dog need not fear undue advantage will be taken, but they must take notice that the full penalty will be the result of evasion.

The personal tax list has not been gone over but those delinquent are going to be levied on; they may take this as a hint from the mayor and not blame the city treasurer if they get into litigation. The same applies to the poll tax. A few hundred taxpayers have met this but the others have paid no attention. They can also take it as a hint direct from his honor that they will pay a goodly fine in addition to the tax if they fail to pay up after being officially notified.

The youth of the city will take notice that they are liable to a heavy fine for loitering in saloons unaccompanied by their guardian. The law is going to be strictly enforced from this on.

Junk dealers are especially informed that anyone caught dumping old boilers and other rubbish on the streets approaching the city will be prosecuted to the fullest extent of the law. The city has spent quite a sum of money in cleaning these streets and all should take pride in keeping them in a presentable condition.

GOOD SPEAKERS COMING

Noted Lady Orators to Attend the District Convention Here May 24th and 25th.

Arrangements are now practically completed for the Eighth District convention of women's clubs, which will be held in this city on Tuesday and Wednesday, May 24th and 25th. On the evening of the first named date a reception will be held at the club rooms in the public library building, when an address will be delivered by Mrs. R. H. Edwards of Oshkosh, president of the state federation. Among the prominent speakers who will be heard during the sessions on Wednesday are Mrs. Witter of Oshkosh, who speaks on "Household Economics," Mrs. Roberts of Waupaca and Mrs. Hewitt of Oshkosh. A six o'clock banquet will be served Wednesday evening, followed by a number of toasts by local and outside speakers.

The hostesses for this convention are the Woman's and Progress clubs and it is expected that every member of both local organizations will take an active interest in the affair by attending as many as possible of the various gatherings. Stevens Point will be exceptionally honored at this time as many of the state's brightest women have promised to be with us. The interest thus far evinced by the various committees gives every indication that the district convention will be among the most successful yet held.

Waupaca Coming Next Sunday.

The base ball season in Stevens Point will be opened next Sunday, when the Waupaca club comes here for a game with the Stevens Point city team. It will take place at the fair grounds beginning at 3 o'clock p. m., for which an admission of 25 cents will be collected. The local aggregation will be on hand with an entirely new line-up and one or more surprises are in store for the fans.

During the week "booster" tickets will be disposed of around town for the sum of 50 cents and it is hoped that a sufficient fund can be collected to put the team on a good working basis for the season. These tickets will admit the holder to next Sunday's game. However, remember that if you do not care to buy a "booster" ticket, you will be admitted to the grounds for the sum of 25 cents.

Forty Hours' Devotion.

A forty hours' devotion is being conducted at St. Stephen's church, opening this morning with a solemn high mass at which the sermon was preached by Rev. Wm. Mortell of Waupaca. The pastor, Rev. W. J. Rice, was also assisted in the services by Rev. W. J. Luby of Poygan. It is expected that Father Brennan of Wausau will preach the sermon this evening. Other clergymen expected here today and tomorrow are Revs. Casey of Lebanon, W. B. Polaczky of Redgranite, M. Klossowski of Plover, G. A. Schmitter of Custer, M. H. Clifford of Oshkosh, Geo. A. Clifford of Chilton and J. E. Meagher of Lamark.

Goos Insane Over Comet.

Clara A. Yanke, wife of Frank F. Yanke of the town of Almond, was taken to the Northern hospital at Oshkosh this morning by Sheriff Berry and her husband. Mrs. Yanke was examined by Dr. R. B. Smiley of this city and Dr. D. R. Searls of Plainfield, who found that she is insane. The lady is 33 years of age. Her present unfortunate condition is the result of brooding over religious matters and the too close study of Halley's comet, which she believes will be the destruction of the earth within a short time. The lady had figured to a mathematical certainty just how fast the comet was traveling toward the earth and had concluded almost the hour that it would strike this sphere one fell swoop. Mrs. Yanke had been an inmate of the Oshkosh asylum before and never fully recovered her mental faculties.

A Long Procession.

Nearly one hundred and seventy members of the Catholic Knights, Foresters, Knights of Columbus and Holy Name societies met at Foresters hall at 8 o'clock Sunday morning and marched to St. Stephen's church to partake of Easter communion. Father Rice was assisted the afternoon before and in the evening Rev. R. G. Greven, a member of the faculty at St. Norbert's College, West DePere, arrived here and remained until Sunday afternoon. He delivered a sermon in the morning and spoke to the members of the Holy Name society and others at 1:45 in the afternoon. The morning procession was one of the longest seen here in some time.

To Teach at Wausau.

The board of education of Wausau met last Monday evening when they decided to re-engage the three Stevens Point young ladies who are now teaching in the schools of that city. The teachers mentioned are Miss Judith Wadleigh, who fills the position of supervisor of drawing; Miss Ruth Porter, teacher of Latin in the High school, and Miss Mable Sustins, second grade teacher in the Franklin school. One of the new appointments is that of Miss Ella Langenberg, who graduated from the Stevens Point High school in June, 1908, and will finish the full course at the local Normal next month. Other former students at the Stevens Point Normal who have been given positions in the Wausau schools for the coming year are Miss Georgiana Clark, Mrs. Cassandra Thrasher, Miss Frances Irvine, Miss Anna Jenkins, Miss Jeramie Johnson and Miss Lois Bossey.

DON HALL WILL HUSTLE

Well Known Actor to Make Fight for Republican Senatorial Nomination in This District.

Some weeks ago The Gazette announced that Don C. Hall, the actor and manager, was a candidate for the Republican nomination for state senator in the 21st district, comprising the counties of Portage and Waupaca. A personal letter from the gentleman, who is now in southern Wisconsin, says that he will be in Stevens Point Decoration day and intimates that from that time on he will be prepared to push his candidacy. To quote his own words: "My interest is with all the people for local advancement—a business man for business men's consideration." I can do as much—I will do more—for the 21st district than any other man who may be presented."

An outline of where Mr. Hall stands may be gleaned from the following, clipped from the Lowell (Ind.) Souvenir of April 28th:

In an interview with Mr. Don C. Hall he informed us that his home is at Stevens Point, Wis., and that he is a candidate for state senator on the Republican ticket. He is of the progressive type of Republicanism and an admirer of U. S. Senators LaFollette and Beveridge and ex-President Roosevelt, although he is not an extremist either way. He wants to go to the senate in order that he may do all the good possible for the people of his state, and after he has served a term his good acts will live and he will not be forgotten six months after the session adjourns. Our acquaintance with Mr. Hall dates from 1903, and we know him to be a thoroughly honest and conscientious and moral man. He is well educated and an orator of merit, and should be elected (and he should?) he will be a credit to his state.

Nation Building.

Rev. J. A. Stemen, pastor of the Presbyterian church, will give a special sermon at the service next Sunday morning when his subject will be "Nation Building," suggested by the death of King Edward VII of England.

State Editor of Free Press.

Wm. Culver, of Milwaukee, spent Monday and part of Tuesday visiting at the home of his parents, Prof. and Mrs. G. E. Culver. Will now fills the responsible position of state editor for the Milwaukee Free Press and is well pleased with his new job. He had been employed most of the winter as reporter and assistant telegraph editor for the Madison Democrat. Mr. Culver formerly conducted a paper of his own in Idaho, but was compelled to sell the business on account of his wife's health. She is now at the Culver home in this city and has been showing marked improvement of late.

NORMAL NOTES.

Geo. E. Denman of Bruce entered school this week. Stella Murat of the Senior class is substituting in the primary grades at Plainfield. Misses Mae McNeil, Charlotte Fox and Josephine Collins visited at the home of the latter young lady in Wausau over Sunday. Miss Ina Crockett was visited during Sunday and Monday by her mother, Mrs. Crockett of Westfield, who also visited school Monday. Miss Studley and Prof. Gardner acted as judges at a contest held at Merrill last Friday, while Prof. Hippensteel acted in a like capacity at Royalton.

The inspection committee of the Board of Regents will be here Thursday. This committee inspects the building for the purpose of finding out its material needs.

The orchestra dance, given in the gym. last Friday night, was very successful, although the crowd was rather small. Excellent music was furnished by the orchestra and three pleasant hours were passed by the dancers.

Mr. Puchler, railroad secretary of the Y. M. C. A., delivered a very helpful talk to the school Monday morning. Mr. Puchler spoke about the great work the Y. M. C. A. is carrying on at the present time and has carried on in the past.

The Ohivesa society held a very enjoyable May party in the gym. Friday from 6 to 9. Luncheon was served about 6:30 after which a program was held, this including a novel May polo dance. The rest of the evening was spent in dancing.

This week's Tuesday afternoon talk was delivered by Prof. Collins, who gave an excellent address on Halley's comet. As the earth will come within fighting distance of this wanderer of the skies on May 18th, Prof. Collins talk was very appropriate. After giving a very interesting account of the comet's history and discovery, he explained its makeup and origin by means of diagrams, and then proceeded to predict dire things for the earth and its people, if—However, his unconcerned manner was an assurance that the "if" would not come true.

The following rhetorical program will be rendered Friday:

RESULTS EXCEEDED HIS EXPECTATIONS

In an experiment recently made by John Perkins, residing on rural route No. 2, Henniker, N. H., the results obtained far exceeded his expectations. Mr. Perkins was so pleased that he made a statement for general publication, saying:

"For a number of years I was an invalid from a combination of troubles. I suffered terribly from constipation and piles, and was so stiffened with rheumatism that I could not arise without assistance. I was also troubled with dizziness. My stomach was out of order, my appetite fickle, I felt dull, weak and tired all the time, and was in a generally rundown condition.

"My wife and daughter having both used Cooper's remedies with beneficial results, I decided to try them. They proved helpful beyond all expectations. The New Discovery soon put my bowels into good condition, and the piles disappeared. My appetite improved, and I began to relish my meals, having no difficulty in digesting all that I ate. The dizziness soon left me and has not returned.

"I used Cooper's Quick Relief liniment as an aid to the New Discovery for my rheumatism, which has not troubled me now for a long time. The Cooper remedies worked wonders for me."

L. T. Cooper, whose medicine was used by Mr. Perkins, claims that stomach trouble is responsible for nearly all illness, and that if the stomach is restored to normal and healthy activity, such diseases as rheumatism, kidney and liver troubles, etc., will quickly disappear. His preparations have certainly made a remarkable record. We are agents for them in this community. H. D. McCulloch Co.

FOR OUT-DOOR SCHOOLS

Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis Association Enlarges Scope of Its Work for Children—Outdoor Schools in Cities.

An "outdoor school" for every city in Wisconsin!

This is the slogan of a new movement started by the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association in the interest of good health for the tens of thousands of school children of the Badger state.

Statistics gathered by the society show that 70 per cent. of all school children are defective in some particular; and 5 per cent. are sufferers from glandular trouble, anemia, consumption or are predisposed toward tuberculosis.

By providing an outdoor school in each city the defective children are given the opportunity by the municipality of regaining health without discontinuing their education. The outdoor life which roots disease results in a wonderful improvement in the child's capabilities, and a most helpful progress in school work.

At the solicitation of Mrs. Kander, a member of the school board, the association is now preparing the case and pleading the cause of the physically handicapped children of school age in Milwaukee.

The cost to the city is insignificant. The school board is expected to furnish the "school machinery," or one or two teachers and equipment, while outside assistance is obtained to provide for food, clothing, books, etc. In Chicago thirty children were instructed for one month in an outdoor school for about $300 and the results obtained were remarkable in gain of weight, and improved mental and physical vigor.

The anti-tuberculosis association will be glad to give all assistance at its command, statistics, figures and advice to any city or school board in Wisconsin desiring to take up the plan for outdoor schools.

Doing Nicely in Idaho.

Mrs. W. A. Baker, a former esteemed lady resident of this city, whose home has been at Parma, Idaho, for the past few years, writes: "The Gazette is always a welcome guest and is looked for anxiously every Monday, as that is the day we receive it. We are all feeling very happy at present, as the water from the government irrigation project has just come into our ditches and that means a great deal to us all. We have a fine claim here, and with the water, when we get it, all under cultivation and prove up, which we can do in less than a year, it will be very valuable. George Camp has the finest claim in the valley, as it lays right on the bank of the Snake river, and he always has fine fields of alfalfa and a nice orchard growing."

Positions for Stenographers.

The State Civil Service Commission reports that during the last three years it has held on an average three examinations a year for the position of stenographer. From thirty to fifty candidates usually make the eligible list at each examination, and nearly every candidate who passes has a chance during the term of eligibility to accept a position. There are about twenty-five stenographic positions in the legislature, open to men only, at salaries averaging about $150 a month during the legislative session. The more competent stenographers in the legislature invariably get advancement as a result of their legislative experience.

There is no other eligible list so quickly exhausted as that of stenographer. The reason obviously is that there is a present demand both in the state service and in the business world, especially for women who have sufficient education to fit them for secretarial work.

The next examination for stenographer, including stenographers for the legislative session of 1911, will be held on the 25th of June. Salaries for women range from $40 to $100 per month. There are frequent calls for stenographers at salaries ranging from $45 to $60.

The state service covers a wide range, and to supply the necessary information to persons who are interested in the work, the commission has issued a pamphlet of information which describes the various clerical, stenographic, technical and manual positions in the state service. This may be procured by writing to the State Civil Service Commission at Madison, Wis.

"The work of the commission has grown steadily during the last four or five years, and at the present time over seventy-five to one hundred temporary and permanent positions are being filled each month by competitive examinations."

One's Own Reflection.
Each one sees what he carries in his heart.—Goethe

Father, dear father, come home with me now, for ma has some carpets to beat, she's got all the furniture out in the road from the front porch down to the street. The stove must come down and be put in the shed, and the yard must be cleaned of dry grass, for it's time to clean house and the harry's to pay—and the front window needs some new glass. Father, dear father, come home with me now, and bring some bologna and cheese; its most 12 o'clock and there's nothing to eat—I'm so hungry I'm weak in the knees. All the dinner we'll have will be cold scraps and such, and we'll have to eat standing up, too, for the table and chairs are all out in the yard—Oh, I wish spring house cleaning was through! Father, dear father, come home with me now, for ma is mad as a Turk; she says you're a lazy old thing, and she proposes to put you to work. There's painting to do and paper to hang, and casings and windows to scrub, for its house cleaning time, and you've got to come home and revel in suds and cold grub.

White Specks In Butter.

Mottles in butter and "white specks" are sometimes confounded and by some are considered the same, but there is a difference. Mottled or streaky butter has been explained as being caused by an unequal distribution of the salt, but white specks have a different cause or causes. Sometimes when the milk is set in shallow pans they result from the cream drying on top, so there are small portions that are so hard they do not churn into butter. These particles do not take the color like the rest of the butter, and the specks are thus caused. This may be remedied by carefully straining the cream when it is put into the churn.

Another cause of white specks is this: When some milk is skimmed off with the cream, as is usually done in the case of deep cold setting, this milk settles to the bottom, gets over-ripe and forms a curd, which will be so hard as not to break up in churning and will not run off with the buttermilk, but will remain with the butter as white specks, or flecks, as they are sometimes called. This can be remedied by not letting the cream stand so long before churning or by frequent and thorough stirring of the cream during the process of ripening. These hard, white particles can also be taken out by straining the cream.—United States Department of Agriculture Bulletin.

Danderine

GROWS HAIR and we can PROVE IT!

A lady from Minnesota writes: "After using Danderine, my hair has grown to five feet in length."

Beautiful Hair at Small Cost

Many of the diseases of the scalp are caused by a dry, itching scalp. The hair itself is not the thing to be treated, for the reason that it is simply a product of the scalp and wholly dependent upon its action. A healthy scalp is the very soil in which the hair is produced, nurtured and grown, and it alone should receive the attention if results are to be expected. It would do no earthly good to treat the stem of a plant with a view of making it grow and become beautiful—the soil in which the plant grows must be tended. Therefore, the scalp in which the hair grows must receive the attention if you are to expect it to grow and become more beautiful.

A dry scalp is caused by the scalp drying up, losing its supply of moisture or nutriment, when it occurs the scalp has simply lost all its vitality, leaving nothing for the hair to feed upon. A plant or even a tree would die under similar conditions.

The natural thing to do in either case, is to feed and replenish the scalp as the case may be, and your crop will grow and multiply as nature intended it should.

Knowlton's Danderine has a most wonderful effect upon the hair glands and tissues of the scalp. It is the only remedy for the hair which has been discovered that is similar to the natural hair foods or liquids of the scalp.

It penetrates the pores quickly and the hair soon shows the effects of its wonderfully exhilarating and life-producing qualities.

The 2-cent bottle is enough to convince you of its great worth as a hair growing and hair beautifying remedy—try it and see for yourself.

Peas on Toast.

Heat a can of small, tender green peas in their own liquor, adding a teaspoonful of sugar. Drain off nearly all the liquor and measure. For a cupful melt two level tablespoonfuls of butter in a saucepan, stir in two level tablespoonfuls of flour and when smooth add the cup of liquor. Stir and cook until it looks smooth, then season with salt and pepper and add the peas, the yolks of two eggs beaten light with a tablespoonful of lemon juice or, if you have it on hand, a tablespoonful of vinegar drained from mint sauce. Cook the sauce a few minutes after adding the egg and then pour the whole over nicely toasted bread squares or serve in little bread boxes or patty shells.

Rockefeller's Almsgiver.

Rev. Frederick T. Gates, who dispenses the benefactions of John D. Rockefeller, was formerly a minister of the Baptist church. His first and only pastorate was that of the First Baptist church of Minneapolis. He held it for eight years and then resigned to become corresponding secretary of the American Baptist Education society.

Mr. Gates' connection with John D. came about in this way: Hearing that the oil king was planning a college for New York city, Mr. Gates secured a letter of introduction and journeyed to New York. He told Mr. Rockefeller that Chicago was in greater need of an educational institution than New York and finally convinced the millionaire. "Raise $400,000 and I will give $600,000," said Rockefeller. Mr. Gates made good, and the University of Chicago came to life.

Mr. Rockefeller was impressed with his ability and made him his alms-giver.

Sunlight a Disinfectant.

It ought to be clear to every farmer that the best, cheapest and surest method to keep his stock healthy is to let the sunlight into the stables and pens and let the animals out into the open air enough to invigorate and cleanse them as no disinfectant can, says the Homestead.

There are cloudy and rainy periods when our animals are short of sunlight, when dampness increases in pens and beds and conditions favorable to increase the microbes and disease trouble us. Some resort to disinfectants and exchange the musty smell of the damp quarters for the louder smell of coal tar. That may be the thing to do, but it is not the thing to do to rely on the disinfectant and neglect to let in the sunlight as soon as the clouds go by.

Clean out damp bedding and all the corners where fine filth is crowded and loaded with microbes and let in more sunlight and put in dry bedding. If the stable or pen is so built that the sunlight cannot pour into every nook and corner, then spend money to change the structure to let the sunlight in.

WHITE FACES.

Effect They Produce When First Seen by Colored Races.

Either Stanley or Livingstone perhaps told the world that after long living in Africa the sight of white faces produced something like fear. (And the evil spirits of Africa are white.) Well, even after a few months along with black faces I have felt that feeling of uncomfortableness at the sight of white faces. Something ghastly, terrible, seemed to have come into those faces that I had never imagined possible before. I felt for a moment the black man's terror of the white. At least I think I partly realized what it was.

You remember the Romans lost their first battles with the north through sheer fear. The fairer the wielder, the more spectral the more terrible. Beauty there is in the north, of its kind. But it is surely not comparable with the wonderful beauty of color in other races.

ner. Within two years after entering the New York office he had been made president of thirteen companies in which Mr. Rockefeller held a controlling interest. When Mr. Rockefeller in 1900 decided to sell all his interests outside of Standard Oil one of the properties managed by Mr. Gates was sold to the steel trust for $75,000,000. Since then Mr. Gates has devoted himself almost exclusively to philanthropic work.

Mr. Gates is a native of Broome county, N. Y., is fifty-six years old and was educated at the Baptist seminary at Rochester.

Cook about twenty minutes, remove the skins, pour the sirup with the cloves over the apples in a jar and cover up.

Mayonnaise Dressing.

One cupful of sugar, two tablespoonfuls of flour, one teaspoonful mustard, salt and pepper, four eggs beaten separately. Add yolks first, then whites. One-half cupful of vinegar weakened to two-thirds; beat, then pour in after eggs are added. Cook in double boiler, stirring all the time until thick. Add two tablespoonfuls of olive oil or butter.

Mennonite Toast.

Beat up three eggs well. Add a pint of sweet milk and a pinch of salt, cut slices an inch thick from a loaf of bread and remove crust. Dip slices into the egg and milk, fry like doughnuts in hot lard or drippings till a delicate brown and sprinkle with powdered sugar and serve hot.

To Clean Brass.

Rottenstone and soft soap mixed into a paste are good for polishing brasses. The brass should be rubbed with a flannel dipped in the paste, then with a dry cloth and lastly burnished with leather dipped in finely powdered bath brick.

Will Tattooed on Body.

A Mexican miser who died not long ago was found to have his will tattooed on his breast. It caused his heirs no end of bother, as the document had to be copied before the man could be buried.

Rise to the Occasion.

It is a commonplace that we cannot answer for ourselves before we have been tried. But it is not so common a reflection, and surely more consoling, that we usually find ourselves a great deal better and braver than we thought.—R. L. Stevenson.

Don't waste your money.

There are plenty of good uses for it. Don't pay 40 to 50 cents a pound for baking powder. K C Baking Powder is guaranteed to do better work, and it saves you 30 cents on a pound can.

Effect They Produce When First Seen by Colored Races.

Either Stanley or Livingstone perhaps told the world that after long living in Africa the sight of white faces produced something like fear. (And the evil spirits of Africa are white.) Well, even after a few months along with black faces I have felt that feeling of uncomfortableness at the sight of white faces. Something ghastly, terrible, seemed to have come into those faces that I had never imagined possible before. I felt for a moment the black man's terror of the white. At least I think I partly realized what it was.

You remember the Romans lost their first battles with the north through sheer fear. The fairer the wielder, the more spectral the more terrible. Beauty there is in the north, of its kind. But it is surely not comparable with the wonderful beauty of color in other races.

Easy Ways of Cooking.

An easy way to roast beef or veal: Arrange roast as usual, then cover with thin slices of salt pork. Slip them under string that is around the roast or fasten with toothpicks. Brown thoroughly, then add necessary water. Once or twice turning is sufficient. This saves basting and does away with the hard outside.

THREE PROMINENT PEOPLE

Miss Lena Heidka, Max Neesman and Joseph Scheffner Answer Death's Summons.

LENA HEIDKA.

Miss Lena Heidka, a worthy lady resident of this city, passed away at the home of her brother, Wm. Heidka, 216 26th street, Milwaukee, at 7:30 o'clock last Saturday morning, after long suffering with internal cancer and other complications. She had been in Milwaukee for the past five months, having sold her property here in December, and left immediately thereafter for the Cream City, hoping to find relief with the assistance of expert medical attendance, but was doomed to disappointment, and gradually failed to the end.

Miss Heidka was a native of Germany, born Apr. 12, 1851, and was therefore 59 years of age. Her parents moved to this country when she was a small child, arriving in Stevens Point in 1856, and this had been her home ever since. She was a dressmaker by occupation and was well known and popular among the ladies of our city, being a conscientious, exemplary woman. She is survived by one sister, Mrs. Conrad Zimmer of this city, and two brothers, August Heidka of Clintonville and Wm. Heidka of Milwaukee, the latter being a conductor on the St. Paul road.

The body arrived in the city on train No. 5 over the Soo, Monday evening, and was taken to the home of her sister on Strong's avenue, from where the funeral was held at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

Services were conducted jointly by Rev. E. S. McChesney of Milwaukee, a former pastor of St. Paul's M. E. church in this city, and Rev. C. F. Spray, the present pastor. Hymns were sung by Mrs. C. F. Raymond, Mrs. C. B. Baker, W. B. Buckingham and W. J. Shumway. The following old friends of the family acted as pallbearers: D. J. Kelsey, Chas. F. Thoms, Alex. Bergholte, F. B. Roe, J. W. Merry and Jos. Michael of Chicago.

MAX NEESMAN.

Max Neesman, the well known expert horse shoer of this city, whose serious illness was heretofore mentioned in these columns, passed away at his home, 207 N. First street, at 8:15 o'clock last Wednesday evening. He had been in poor health for a number of months, during which time he leased his blacksmithing establishment on Normal avenue, but recently feeling somewhat improved concluded to resume operations. The strain was more than his weakened condition would permit, however, and on Apr. 20th at about 6:30 o'clock in the evening, after returning home from an active day's work, he suffered a stroke of paralysis, and on Monday of last week a second stroke left him in a more serious condition, he becoming unconscious, in which state he remained until the end at the hour above stated.

Max Neesman was a native of Wisconsin, born at Sheboygan, Apr. 4, 1867, and was therefore in the 44th year of his age at the time of his death. He had followed horse shoeing and blacksmithing ever since he was old enough to work and was exceptionally proficient at horse shoeing. He was also a good musician and had been a leader of bands at Sheboygan, Fond du Lac and Peshtigo, as well as of the Union band in this city for about two years. He arrived in Stevens Point, Nov. 25, 1892, and this had been his home ever since. Nine years ago he built a modern blacksmith and wagon making shop on Normal avenue, adjoining his residence, where he enjoyed an excellent patronage, and which property he owned at the time of his death. Mr. Neesman was elected a member of the common council at the April election in 1904 and served in that official capacity for four years. He belonged to Stump Lodge, I. O. O. F., and Monadnock Encampment, being a faithful member of both organizations. Three years ago he was married to Miss Ida Martin of this city, by whom he is survived, together with one daughter, Leona Maxine, aged 2 years. He also leaves two sisters, Misses Judith and Clara Neesman, both of Sheboygan, and who were with him during his illness.

The funeral took place from the residence at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon, Rev. J. A. Stemen officiating, followed by interment in Forest cemetery beside the remains of his first wife, who died a number of years ago. The Odd Fellows attended in a body and had charge of the services at the grave. The pallbearers were Louis Port, J. W. Moxon, C. F. Hass, Geo. Urban, G. D. Oertel and Chas. Helm.

JOSEPH SCHEFFNER.

On the 27th of April, Joseph Scheffner, whose home is at 119 Crooked Way, was stricken with paralysis, which affected one side of his body. He rallied from this to some extent for a few days, but later gradually failed, his heart being left in a weakened condition and the end came quietly and peacefully at 6:55 o'clock last Thursday morning, and was due to paralysis and heart trouble.

The deceased was born in Austria, Apr. 19, 1832, and was therefore 78 years of age. He came to America in 1866, locating in Milwaukee the following year, where he was married to Miss Mary Karass, they removing to Stevens Point a few months later and had resided here continuously ever since. Mr. Scheffner was a wagonmaker by trade and in the early days built most of the lumber wagons and logging and farm sleighs used in this section, being associated for years with the late Wm. and Patrick Collins, as well as with F. A. Degen, who is now a resident of North Dakota, and all of whom were well known Stevens Point blacksmiths. Due to advanced years and declining health, Mr. Scheffner retired about three years ago. He was a thoroughly honest man, reliable and conscientious in every transaction and was ever attentive to duty. Besides his widow, he is survived by four children, Frank and Miss Matilda Scheffner of this city, and Miss Katharine Scheffner and Mrs. Chas. Breitenstein of Arnett.

The funeral, which was largely attended by old friends and neighbors, was held from St. Stephen's Catholic church at 9 o'clock Saturday morning, Rev. W. J. Rice officiating, with interment in the parish cemetery, all members of the family being present. The pallbearers were Max Krembs, Peter Trilweiler, E. A. Anschütz, D. J.

Kelsey, A. W. Broisteinstein and R. C. Krienke.

YOUNG MEN'S SUNDAY

State Officers of Y. M. C. A. Conduct Services and Give Talks at Local Churches.

Special services and addresses were given at various churches and at the public library in this city last Saturday evening and Sunday under the direction of state officers and others connected with the Wisconsin Young Men's Christian Association. The purpose of these meetings was not with any view of establishing an organization here at this time, but to give the people a broader idea of the work that is being done by the Y. M. C. A. throughout the land, so that when our citizens awake to the fact that such an organization is needed for our young men, they will be better prepared to begin active preparations.

The first meeting was held Saturday evening at St. Paul's M. E. church when a stereopticon lecture was given, showing various Y. M. C. A. buildings throughout the state, and their cost, the cost of maintenance and various other details were described. A musical program was also given at this time.

At the Sunday morning services Mr. Puehler spoke at the Presbyterian church, Mr. Anderson at the Methodist and Mr. Whones at the Baptist. A meeting for men was held at the library club rooms Sunday afternoon when Messrs. Anderson and Puehler addressed the audience and Mr. Whones conducted a meeting at the South Side C. E. chapel.

A Christian Endeavor and Epworth League meeting was held at the Presbyterian church at 6:45 Sunday evening, led by Mr. Norman of Wausau, and later at the same place a union meeting of the evangelical congregations in the city was conducted, all of the Y. M. C. A. officers speaking at this time.

Messrs. Anderson, Whones and Puehler are state officers of the Y. M. C. A. and Mr. Norman is connected with the Wausau organization. All are enthusiastic over the great good that this society for young men has already accomplished and are anxious that its effect for good be made possible in every city and town in the state.

Paid Heavy Costs.

Chas. Worzalla, a resident of the 4th ward, who was recently arrested for neglecting and refusing to send his children to school, was arraigned before Justice Park, last Saturday, and was fined $5 and costs, the latter amounting to $17.50. He entered a plea of guilty, and on promise to hereafter obey the law and send his children to school, the fine was remitted, but he had to "dig up" the costs. Worzalla claimed that his children had been kept out of school on account of ill health, but produced no proof to this effect. He also said that he was unable to buy clothes and books, but had been informed time and again during the past two years that the city would provide these necessities. This should be a lesson to others in the city who fail to give their children the advantages of our excellent schools, public, parochial and Normal.

St. Peter's Pupils Entertain.

Last Sunday evening the pupils of St. Peter's parochial school gave an entertainment in the school hall which was attended by an audience that taxed the capacity of the room. The program was arranged by the Sisters of the school and the success of the venture showed the thoroughness with which they had drilled those who took part. The various numbers which made up the program were a march and tableau entitled "Sleeping Beauties" by about 25 little girls, a series of declamations in honor of the patron saint of the pastor, Rev. S. A. Elbert, a one act farce, a drama in five acts, a march and drill by a group of girls in ancient costume of the "Girls of Krakow," and several declamations.

Some of the numbers will be repeated at another entertainment to be given next Sunday evening at the same place.

The proceeds of last Sunday evening's entertainment amounted to about $150, which will help to swell a fund for a new parsonage to be built or bought in the near future.

Sunday's Base Ball Game.

The game at the fair grounds last Sunday was fast and snappy throughout and ended with the score of 5 to 2 in favor of the Athletics, whose opponents were members of the city team.

It was a case of who was who with the swat stick and the Athletics carried away the honors.

Kutella of the "big" team was forced to retire in the sixth and was replaced in the pitcher's box by Breidert, who finished the game well.

Menzel of the Athletics pitched fine ball at all stages of the game and was given good support.

Bert Maunders and Joe Neuberger did the heavy with the willow. Maunders getting a three-base hit and Neuberger a two-base hit. The line-up follows:

Are Drugs Necessary?

Do Drugs Cure Disease?

Can Nature be Assisted?

If people were born right and afterwards lived right, there would be no use for medicine. Every doctor knows this. So do other well-informed people. One thing more. When a person lives wrongly, or acquires bodily weakness by heredity, medicine can do only very little. Medicine cannot cure him. Only charlatans claim that medicines will cure disease. Medicines may palliate symptoms. Medicines may urge the powers of Nature to resist disease. Medicines sometimes arouse the efforts of the human body to right itself against derangements. This is the most that medicine can do.

A man accidentally puts his finger in the fire. Instinctively he wets his finger in his mouth, then blows on it for the cooling effect. This is no cure. He knows it very well. But it makes it feel better for the time being.

People eat unwisely. This produces dyspepsia or indigestion. The only rational cure is to eat correctly. Yet if a palliative is at hand the pains of indigestion can be mitigated, the throes of dyspepsia assuaged. The medicine cannot be said to have cured. It simply palliates disagreeable symptoms. The cure must come through right living.

Take Peruna, for instance. No one claims Peruna is a cure for dyspepsia. But Peruna will stimulate the stomach to perform its function properly. Peruna will increase the flow of digestive fluids, without which digestion cannot be carried on at all. It will increase the relish of food, the appetite.

It is admitted that all this can be accomplished by right living, but there are so many people who either will not or do not know how to eat correctly that a tremendous amount of good can be done by the wise use of Peruna.

A stomach that has been frequently abused performs the function of digestion very lazily. Such a stomach allows the food to remain undigested for some time after it is swallowed. This leads to fermentation of the food. Sour stomach is the result. This goes on week after week, until the blood is poisoned with the products of fermentation. This condition is very apt to produce rheumatism.

It is not claimed that Peruna will cure rheumatism. Nothing will cure rheumatism but correct living. But it is claimed that Peruna will assist a badly abused stomach to perform its work.

If a person would correct his habits, persist in right eating and temperate ways, undoubtedly the stomach would right itself, the blood would rid itself of the poison, and everything would be right. But as said before there are a multitude of people who will not or cannot adopt right methods of living. To such people Peruna is a boon. A dose before meals will assist the stomach to do its work. This prevents fermentation of the food, brings about normal digestion, and all the train of ills that follow indigestion disappear.

In other words, Peruna is helpful to those who live badly, or those who have acquired some chronic weakness. Peruna does not cure, but it assists the powers of Nature to bring about a cure.

The whip does not increase the power of the horse to pull a load, but judiciously used it stimulates the horse to use his powers at the right time, without which he could not have pulled the load.

This illustrates the effect of Peruna, or any other good remedy upon the system. Taken at the right time, it calls forth the powers of the human system to meet the encroachments of disease, and thus cuts short, if not entirely ends, the diseased action.

No one should ever attempt to substitute medicine in the place of right living. In the end such an attempt will prove a disaster. But an occasional use of the right medicine at the right time is a godsend, and no reasonable person will undertake to deny it.

Those who know how to use Peruna find it of untold value. By and by the world will get wise enough so that through correct living no medicine at all will be needed. But that time has not arrived. In the meantime, while the world is approaching that perfection in which all medicine will be eliminated, Peruna is a handy remedy to have in the house.

Slight derangements of the stomach; slight catarrhal attacks of the liver, the throat, bronchial tubes, lungs or bowels; these attacks are sure to lead to grave diseases, and can be averted by the judicious use of Peruna.

Wouldn't you like to read a few unsolicited testimonials from people who have used Peruna, and who stand ready to confirm the above statements concerning it. If so, address the Peruna Drug Manufacturing Co., Columbus, Ohio, and we will send some prepaid.

Signals of Distress

Stevens Point People Should Know How to Read and Heed Them.

Sick kidneys give many signals of distress. The secretions are dark, contain a sediment. Passages are frequently, scanty, painful. Backache is constant day and night. Headaches and dizzy spells are frequent. The weakened kidneys need quick help. Don't delay! Use a special kidney remedy. Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys, backache and urinary disorders. Stevens Point evidence proves this statement.

Dennis Dorney, 422 Fremont street, Stevens Point, Wis., says: "I had more or less trouble from my kidneys for several years. These organs were weak and the secretions passed too frequently. At times I was in misery on account of the pains in my kidneys, and although I tried many remedies, I was not helped until I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills, procured from Taylor Bros. drug store. They relieved me promptly and in two months I was cured."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cts. Mailed by Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agent for the U.S.

Woman's World

TEDDY JUNIOR'S FIANCEE.

Sister Ethel to Be One of Miss Alexander's Bridesmaids.

The wedding of Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., and Miss Eleanor Butler Alexander of New York city will not take place until after Colonel Roosevelt's return from Africa and the subsequent quieting down of the family.

This was the statement of young Mr. Roosevelt recently when a request to see Miss Alexander brought him into the reception hall of the Alexander home.

The maid who answered the door had smiled and declared that she would tell Miss Alexander of the reporter's presence. A young man came out of the room into which the maid had disappeared. He was democratic and hearty in his greeting. He was of medium height, blue eyed, considerably tanned and wore a blue serge suit.

"I'm Mr. Roosevelt," he said, pulling down his coat a trifle nervously, then smiling broadly. Then there could have been no doubt he was the son of the man who has been pictured a thousand times saying "Dee-lighted!"

"Say, this is very strenuous, announcing an engagement," Mr. Roosevelt said. "But everybody has been so nice it makes it splendid. Now, what did you want to see Miss Alexander about? Perhaps I can tell you what you want to know."

"There are four questions," was the reply. "Have any arrangements been made in regard to the wedding? Will the trousseau be imported or homemade? Does Miss Alexander take any interest in politics? How does she stand on the suffrage question?"

Teddy junior didn't study over the matter very long, but answered with the assurance of a fiancee who feels very confident of his knowledge of the lady's mind.

"The wedding will not take place until after my father's return—that is positive—and probably not until next summer," he said. "My sister Ethel will probably be one of the bridesmaids and Miss Elizabeth Bertron the maid of honor. But no more definite plans than those have been made."

"Miss Alexander hasn't any trousseau idea as yet. Why, how could she? The styles might change in the meantime, might they not? As to whether it will be imported or not—well, different parts come from different places, don't they?"

"No, Miss Alexander doesn't care anything about politics—I mean, not more than anybody else cares about politics. Well, she is just interested as a person is interested in anything that goes on, but that one doesn't think much about."

"No, indeed," and here Mr. Roosevelt shook his head with much determination. "She doesn't care a bit about this suffrage foolishness. The thought of it has never come into her head."

Mr. Roosevelt said he didn't know where they were going to live, as it was possible that he would be transferred from Hartford, where he is employed in the carpet works. He said he didn't care much where he lived so long as he gets along nicely.

The Flower Craze Continues.

Sets of artificial flowers will be just as popular this spring as they have been all winter. The same blossom or collection of blossoms will decorate the

HUNTING THE WALRUS.

Daring of the Eskimos and Their Work With the Harpoon.

With the harpoon as a weapon the hunters left the solid ice to spring lightly from one small piece to another until a pan large enough to hold them was reached far out in the open lake. The pieces over which the passage was made were often so small that they would have sunk under a man's weight had he faltered or hesitated upon them for a moment. It seemed to me that the Eskimos were absolutely reckless in this passage over the broken pieces and took no account of the manner in which they should return. Certainly only a fearless man with a clear eye and nerves of iron could accomplish it.

A large, safe pan once attained well in the midst of the blowing walrus, a stand was taken near its edge, where, with harpoon poised, the hunter waited until a walrus came within striking distance. Then like lightning the weapon was sunk deep into the animal's body, and quick as a flash a harpoon shaft provided with a heavy point of iron was driven firmly into the ice and several turns of line taken around it and held taut by the Eskimo.

This strong line held the walrus in spite of its struggles to free itself, and not an inch was surrendered to it by the Eskimo. As the walrus gradually tired the line was tightened little by little until finally the great animal was well alongside the pan, when it was quickly dispatched with a lance.—Harry Whitney in Outing.

WAITING FOR A WIFE.

One Man Who Thought Twenty Years Was Just a Starter.

"There's romance for you," said little Binks, putting aside his morning paper. "This paper has a story of a college professor who met a beautiful girl twenty years ago, fell in love with her at first sight and then lost sight of her altogether. Now, after waiting for twenty years, he is rewarded by leading her to the altar as his bride. Just think of it, waiting twenty years for a wife!"

"What of it?" asked the genial philosopher. "There's nothing extraordinary about that. I've waited thirty-five years for mine."

"You? Waited thirty-five years? Why, I thought you'd been married that long," said little Binks.

"I have," said the genial philosopher. "That's how I know how long I've waited. I've waited for her to get her gloves on about three years. I've waited for her to change her hat about four years. I've waited while she said just one last word to the cook for at least five years. I've waited upstairs, I've waited downstairs, I've waited at church, I've waited at the theater, and I have waited in cabs, omnibuses, taxis, motorcars and the Lord knows what else besides. Fact is, Binks, I've waited so long, so often and so regularly that between you and me that little college professor of yours, with only one wait of twenty years, strikes me as a miserable little piker."—Harper's Weekly.

The Word "Woebegone."

The word "woebegone" is an interesting survival of the far past. "Begone" here represents the past participle of the Anglo-Saxon verb "begin," to go around about, a word which has otherwise entirely disappeared from our vocabulary, but which has its analogies in such verbs as "beset" and "begird," in which the prefix "be" represents the modern preposition "by." A woebegone countenance is thus that of a man compassed about with woe, though perhaps it is most generally used in a somewhat slighting manner to imply that the appearance of grief is greater than the circumstances warrant. Thus it has partially undergone the same process of degeneration which has made "maudlin tears"—original tears of penitence from Mary Magdalene—bear a contemptuous meaning.—London Standard.

The Admirable Korean.

With all his languor, the Korean is a particularly agreeable person. He is the polished gentleman in the setting of the savage. He is one of nature's cheerful spirits—a Mark Tapley who goes whistling through life despite the multiplication of his misfortunes. He is the victim of his own good nature and is content to sit unconcerned on his boundary fence and witness the robbery of his estates. It is a pleasure to visit Korea if only to meet the Korean himself, says the Japan Weekly Chronicle, for he is the happy-go-lucky, good tempered simpleton who unconsciously contributes to the pleasure of others.

Big Deposit of Iron Ore.

The largest deposit of titaniferous iron ore in the middle of Sweden is Taberg, in the Province of Smaland, seven miles south of the town of Jonkoping. This small mountain is 450 feet high and consists entirely of this iron ore. The area is figured to be 2,800,000 square feet.

Lion Fondles A Child.

In Pittsburg a savage lion fondled the hand that a child thrust into his cage. Danger to a child is sometimes great when least regarded. Often it comes through colds, croup and whooping cough. They slay thousands that Dr. King's New Discovery could have saved. "A few cures cured our baby of a very bad case of croup," writes Mrs. George B. Davis, of Flat Rock, N. C. "We always give it to him when he takes cold. It's a wonderful medicine for babies." Best for coughs, colds, lagrippe, asthma, hemorrhoids, weak lungs. 50c. $1.00. Trial bottle free. "RICK ANIMALS.

Sometimes the Trainer Has to Do His Work Quickly.

"You wouldn't believe how fast you have to work to train an animal," said the man who has broken everything from elephants to geese the other day. "Why, I can tell just how many hours it is going to take to break in any kind of animal you might mention."

"A woman came to me the other day and said: 'I want a trained goose for my magic act. How much will you charge me to break one?'"

"Sixty dollars," said I.

"Well, how do you figure that out?" she asked.

"Why, it's very simple, I said. 'It's $1 an hour, and it will take me just sixty hours.'"

"Yes, sir; I can train a goose—that is, to follow me around and do some simple tricks—in sixty hours, a pig in thirty hours, and so on. But as for a peafowl and a guinea hen—they can't be trained in a hundred years."

"Now, you take a troupe of trained dogs. That doesn't take half as long to do as people suppose. No, sir; a man with an animal show has got to work fast. Why, maybe the boss comes around on a Monday morning and says: 'Here—here's a bunch of six dogs. Now make an act out of it for next Monday's show.'"

"There are six green dogs to make into a troupe in a week. Can't be done, you say? Sure, it can! One dog—one trick—one day. That's the principle, and you can do it too. Each dog will learn a trick each day all right. One will learn a back somersault, one a front somersault, one to walk on his hind legs, one on his front legs, one to roll over, and so on. Then by the end of the week you've got a nice little act, and all the people are acclaiming about your years of patience and that sort of stuff. Patience is a good thing, of course, but the secret is just 'know how,' that's all."—New York Post.

Telling Eggs.

The problem of tellings eggs is not an easy one by any means. Very few of us know how to do it properly. On the other hand, there are those who think they should not be told at all, but that is old fashioned nonsense, inspired entirely by false modesty. It is safe to say that eggs should be told at as early an age as possible consistent with their temperament. If allowed to go too long there is grave danger that the egg will become bad, and when an egg becomes bad it is hopeless. The world is full of bad eggs which might have been saved if they had been told in time.—Lippincott's.

Burn Requires Care.

Do not neglect a burn as soon as the first sting is passed. Should there be the least sign of inflammation or of pus accumulating call in a doctor at once. In case of bad burns it is sometimes necessary to wrap the victim in cotton to keep out all air. In such case the doctor would naturally be in charge.

Swearing in the New York subway was punished by a $10 fine. New Yorkers will please take warning and get out of the subway before expressing themselves. Swearing at and not in the subway is the more economical as well as appropriate.

John D. Rockefeller would go broke if he should spend his entire income trying to prepare a better medicine than Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for diarrhoea, dysentery or bowel complaints. It is simply impossible, and so says every one that has used it. Sold by H. D. McCulloch Co.

Recent railroad accidents, while they indicate no improvement in operating safeguards, at least give evidence of a gain in safety through more substantial equipment. For trains to come in collision with each other ten years ago or for a section of a train to leave the rails at high speed would have meant a larger casualty list than is now the case.

HELPFUL HINTS TO CITY FARMERS

SECOND ARTICLE.
DON'T expect the hired girl to chin herself on a wire rope every time she hangs out the wash. Buy one of those neat but not gaudy family turnstiles, with force feed and family lubricator. Next to a bottle of some approved colic remedy this is the greatest boon that can be placed in any home. More hired girls have become shoulder bound in the attempt to wrap the handles of a pink chemise around a lofty clothesline than from any other cause.

Never allow a cow to stroke you across the upper lip with her tail during the process of milking. If you encourage this kind of familiarity do not be surprised if she thoughtlessly plants both feet in the pit of your stomach some evening and makes you cough up loose tissue for a week. The only way to inspire respect in a peevish milk cow is to jar her back teeth loose about twice a week with a sec-found out that the more affection you shower upon some cows the quicker they are to start a puncture in your diaphragm.

We have been asked why some bees sting harder than others. Personally we never could see any difference. The average male bee, so scientists tell us, has a stroke varying from one-eighth to one-quarter of an inch, depending upon the resistance encountered. A well directed sting on the surface of a live bull, for instance, is liable to cause more uneasiness on the part of the stinger than one planted on a new shirt cuff. Some bees have a rotary motion in their stinging apparatus, while others use a smooth bore which is about as pleasing as painless dentistry. If you are bound to be stung, choose a bee whose family relations are pleasant or go and bite off a chunk of mining stock.

The poultry keeper who ornaments his bennery with the Brahma rooster is stung. This bird requires only two hours' sleep per day, and he generally takes this from 7 to 9 in the morning. He usually turns his voice loose about 3 a. m., and by 6 o'clock he is so hoarse that he sounds like an expiring corn sheller. The Brahma can be heard for six miles on a still day when in good voice, and his conversation becomes extremely monotonous. He is a large, rawboned bird, with a crop capacity of four full quarts, and is the only substitute for the windmill on the farm. The Brahma makes about as delicious a dinner dish as stewed polecat.

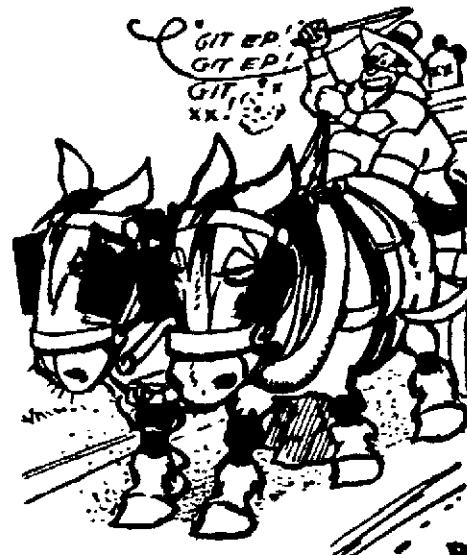

The farmer who is too poor to buy a pair of warm blankets for his team with dogs at $10 and milk at $1.50 a hundred ought to try doing the chores in a gauze union suit and see how he likes it. The man who will allow a faithful team to stand for hours in the teeth of a bitter wind while he naps the grocery store stove and settles the tariff question has a disposition which would make a hyena turn green with envy. We have seen men who had plenty of time in which to gabble about old Joe Cannon and the steel schedule, but who were too busy to slip a couple of blankets on a servering team. If there is a hell the man who allows his team to freeze to the pavement on a winter's night will be called upon to do a jig at the tail of a toasting fork that will last 150,000 years.

There is a great difference in brood sows. Some sows seem to have no sense of family relationship and are just as liable to offer refreshments to a guinea hen as to a member of their own family.

This usually results from near-sightedness. Provide the sow with a pair of smoked glasses and lead her family up to the booth every morning for a few days, after which no trouble will be experienced. The average sow is long on swill and short on intellect. In fact, we never knew a sow that had anything on a cream vat in point of intelligence and culture, but patience and tact will accomplish wonders.

It is a pure waste of time to attempt to make a trotting horse out of the Clydesdale. We never saw a Clydesdale in our life that could wiggle around a half mile track in less than seventeen minutes, yet some farmers are disappointed if they can't get to town and back the same day with a team of Clydesdales weighing 4,000 pounds in their lingerie. The Clydesdale is not a society favorite and never will be. He has the same relation to the speed ring as a deflated wheelbarrow, but when it comes to jerking a manure spreader over plowed ground he is there fifty-seven ways. As a driving horse the Clydesdale is a melancholy joke.

We have patented a fly net which will soon be placed upon the market. This net is made of three thicknesses of four ply cotton batten and can be had in the following colors: Venetian red, goblin blue and budweiser yellow. This is a form fitting net and is made in three styles—to wit, the princess abdominal, the anti-fat hip reducer and the royal flush straight front. This net has the approval of the board of health and the pure food commission. This net requires no staples, strings or suspenders. It is held in place by perspiration and the force of gravity.

The best farm dog ever put out is the collie pup. A good Scotch or Canadian-irish collie with a loud voice and firm teeth will inspire more respect in a herd of milk cows than a barful of milk stools. In picking out a shepherd dog always select one whose mother was crossed with a hyena and which can point with his nose and set with his tail. He may not take any beauty prizes, but when he sinks his front teeth in the back porch of a stubborn steer you will have to pry him loose with a stick of dynamite. This breed of pup has better staying qualities than a straight front corset.

Never serve salt pork in a tureen ladle. The process is wasteful and may result in clogging the inlet to the esophagus. Salt pork should be reserved for company dinners, anyway. It is cheap and filling, and one pound will go further than any other breakfast food we know of. A pound jag of salt pork on a hand painted dolly makes an appetizing centerpiece and is a good chaser for mock turtle soup.

HOW TO CURE ECZEMA, PIMPLES, AND DANDRUFF.

We desire to say when we took the agency for ZEMO, we are convinced that it was a valuable remedy for eczema, pimples, and dandruff. Yet we must frankly admit that ZEMO has far exceeded expectations as a treatment for skin diseases. We are pleased to state that we shall continue the agency as ZEMO has given splendid results wherever recommended. Our customers like ZEMO too because it is a clean vegetable liquid for external use.

ZEMO effects its cures by drawing to the surface of the skin and destroying the germ life that causes the disease, leaving the skin clear and healthy. It does not soil the clothing or linen and be used freely on infants. With every purchase we give a booklet on skin diseases explaining in simple words how any person can be cured at home of any form of skin or scalp diseases by this clean, scientific remedy. H. D. SYNOPSIS.

The story opens with the introduction of John Stephens, an adventurer, a Massachusetts man marooned by authorities at Valparaiso, Chile. Being interested in mining operations in Bolivia, he was denounced by Chile as an insurrectionist and as a consequence was hiding. At his hotel his attention was attracted by an Englishman and a young woman. Stephens rescued the young woman from a drunken officer. He was thanked by her. Admiral of the Peruvian navy confronted Stephens, told him that war had been declared between Chile and Peru and offered him the office of captain. He desired that that night the Esmeralda, a Chilean vessel, should be captured. Stephens accepted the commission. Stephens met a motley crew, to which he was assigned. He gave them final instructions. They boarded the vessel. They successfully captured the vessel supposed to be the Esmeralda, through strategy. Capt. Stephens gave directions for the departure of the craft. He entered the cabin and discovered the English woman and her maid. Stephens quickly learned that the wrong vessel had been captured. It was Lord Darlington's private yacht, the lord's wife and maid being aboard. He explained the situation to her ladyship. Then First Mate Tuttle laid bare the plot, saying that the Sea Queen had been taken in order to go to the Antarctic circle. Tuttle explained that on a former voyage he had learned that the Donna Isabel was lost in 1832. He had found it frozen in a bay, and he had on an island and contained much gold. Stephens consented to be the captain of the expedition. He told Lady Darlington. She was greatly alarmed, but expressed confidence in him. The Sea Queen encountered a vessel in the fog. Stephens attempted to communicate. This caused a fierce struggle and he was overboard. Tuttle finally squaring the situation. Then the Sea Queen headed south again. Under Tuttle's guidance the vessel made progress toward its goal. De Nova, the mate, told Stephens that he believed Tuttle was acting as skipper insane because of his queer actions. Stephens was awakened by crashing of glass. He saw Tuttle in the grip of a spasm of religious mania and overcame him. The sailor upon regaining his senses was taken ill. Tuttle committed suicide by shooting. Upon vote of the crew Stephens assumed the leadership and the men decided to continue the treasure hunt. The islands being supposed to be only 200 miles distant. Tuttle was buried in the sea. Lady Darlington pronouncing the service. Stephens awaking from sleep saw the ghost, supposed to have been the basis for Tuttle's religious mania.

By heaven, for her sake, if for no other reason, I would play the man! Ay, and I comprehended exactly what such resolve would cost—realized fully what that mongrel crew would say and do the moment their ghostly terrors fled, and they knew I had given up search for the treasure. I should have to command by brute force, by threat and blow. There would be mutiny aboard for every league until we made port. I knew the nature of that sea-scum forward—how they would hate me for failing to hold them to their course in face of death! Well, let them bate; my love was worth by far the more, and the life and honor of Lady Darlington outweighed all else on board—ay, and the treasure of the Donna Isabel! "Implicitly"—I saw her eyes again as she said it, and sprang to the deck, fumbling in the darkness for the latch of my door.

The main cabin was dimly lighted and chill, the fire in the stove low. I paused to rattle it, and add a few lumps of coal from the scuttle standing near by. In spite of surrounding comforts what a grim, inhospitable place this was for any woman like her! The very snugness of the cabin served only to emphasize the gloom and peril without, the frightful polar mystery which surrounded us, which drives men mad amid its awful distances, its shrouded silence.

Suddenly, directly opposite where I stood, I saw it again—that same shapeless, white, gliding figure. An instant only I stood rooted to the spot, my blood like ice, my eyes full of horror. Then the swift reaction came, the reserve courage of a man ashamed of such weakness, and I leaped straight toward the misty object, grappling at it with my hands. I touched nothing but air, falling headlong with a violence jarring the entire cabin, and overthrowing a chair crashing to the deck. Dazed, confused, I staggered to my knees, staring about into the dim shadows. A white-draped figure was at my very elbow, and I sprang to my feet, only to take a quick step backward, grasping at the table, as I recognized Lady Darlington.

"Good God! was that you?" I gasped, the horror still possessing me.

"This certainly is," she answered, swiftly. "But what do you mean? What has occurred?"

"I hardly know," and I looked about me, and then into her face, breathing heavily. "I seem unable to separate the real from the unreal. I am half afraid I am losing my mind. Lady Darlington, it is not only the crew forward who are seeing ghosts on board. I laughed at my experience before, believing it a mere illusion that could never occur again. In that spirit I told you about seeing a white, misty figure in this cabin the night after Tuttle died. It vanished like a wreath of smoke, and daylight made me believe the vision was born of a tired brain. But I have seen it again now—yonder, as plainly as I can see you. It was no dream, no imagination; yet when I sought to grasp the thing, my fingers encountered nothing but air."

I saw her hands tremble, her white face turned whither I pointed; but she had not beheld what I had, and her mind remained clear.

"What was it you saw?"

"A shapeless white figure, misty, vanishing like a bubble."

"Yonder, you say? just where you saw it before?"

I had not thought of that, yet it was true—there, beside Tuttle's door. An instant she stood motionless, her eyes searching the dim corners of the cabin, as though tracing some suspicion awakened within her mind. Suddenly she clasped my arm.

"We do not believe in ghosts, Mr. Stephens, you and I," her voice growing firmer with conviction. "Our education and training make such a conception impossible. There is a natural cause for this, a reason, an actual presence back of the shadow. There must be, and we must find it. Where did you stand when you saw this apparition?"

"Damn You, McKnight, Lie Still!" I panted.

I stepped back to the spot beside the stove, realizing that she still clung tightly to me.

"Here, and I lifted my eyes like this."

She leaned eagerly forward, her breath on my cheek, her fingers clutching my arm.

"Why—why that is a mirror you are looking into! See! What is it reflected there? Turn up the light until I locate the spot. Oh, I see now—the open pantry door. Mr. Stephens, there is where your ghost stood—it was the shadow of a man reflected in that mirror."

Our eyes met, all my former terror fled, shame and anger dominating me.

"Dad?"

"It might be—certainly some one who sought in that way to terrorize officers and crew, and thus compel them to turn back. Whoever it was, he killed Mr. Tuttle, and now seeks to accomplish the same end with you. What are you going to do?"

"Trace him down. The last time the fellow went directly from here to the fore-castle. There must be a passageway from stem to stern."

She caught me as I turned, her gray eyes wide with apprehension.

"You will take me with you?"

"That will be impossible, Lady Darlington. I know nothing regarding this passage amidships, but it must surely lead through the coal bunkers and the engine room."

"But—but I cannot let you go alone," utterly forgetting to conceal her agitation. "Truly, I could not bear to sit it. Whoever this man may be he will become desperate when cornered. Your very life will be in danger."

"And you really care?" my hand clasping hers, my eyes eagerly searching the gray depths.

"Yes, I care," making no effort to free herself; "why should I not? Think what our condition would be if you were not on board. Yet that is not all; I care because I value your life, your friendship. Little as I can do, let me, at least, be near you."

"You are near me," said I, utterly forgetful of circumstances in the sudden rush of passion, "always near me, because my thoughts are with you, my sole purpose in life to serve you."

The gray eyes fell instantly; the clasping hand was withdrawn and pressed to her forehead.

"I—I will try to do as you wish," she faltered, "but are you armed?"

"Not now, but I will get a revolver from my stateroom. First, let me help you to your cabin."

She permitted my guidance without a word of protest, only glancing once up into my face as she put a question.

"You will return here? you will let me know at once what you discover? Promise me this."

"I promise; and more, I will pledge myself to be cautious, so do not worry."

I procured my revolver, turned the light low once more in the main cabin, and then stole silently into the narrow passageway leading forward. There was no light in the pantry, but the faint reflection from the cabin enabled me to distinguish the more prominent outlines. A form lay outstretched on a locker, and I bent over it silently.

It was Dade, curled up on his side and sound asleep. There was no doubt about the reality of his slumber; the fellow was not shamming, and I drew back, leaving him undisturbed. The alley-way leading forward was extremely narrow, yet of a height sufficient to afford comparatively easy passage had it only been lighted. Suddenly a faint glow appeared ahead, and a moment later I slipped cautiously through a small bulkhead door standing ajar, into a low, square room, containing six bunks arranged in tiers of two. A slush lamp swung from a blackened beam, and various articles of wearing apparel dangled from hooks. I peered into the bunks, discovering three occupied, the unconscious sleepers being Cooky, the smooth-faced Chilean, and the gunner, a Swede named Gustafson. None awoke under my scrutiny, although the Chilean was talking in his sleep and thrashing his arms about as if in nightmare. I bent down, looking at him more closely, attracted by something oddly familiar in the upturned features. By all the gods, the fellow was Lieut. Juan Sanchez, his long mustaches shaven, and looking ten years younger! It was so odd a thing, this sudden renewal of a controversy originating thousands of leagues away, that I nearly laughed outright, forgetting for the instant the serious purpose bringing me there.

Yet this surprising discovery of Sanchez aboard seemed of comparatively little importance, and was as quickly dismissed. The narrow bulkhead door leading forward was tightly closed, and in that dim light I had to hunt for it, so perfectly was it fitted into place. When discovered, however, it proved to be unfastened, and I stepped forth into an emptied coal bunker, whence I could look straight forward along the glowing boilers into the engine room. I advanced carefully along the slight open space until I came upon the squad of firemen and big Bill Anderson. The latter shaded his eyes, staring at me as though he mistook me for another ghost, but I took the initiative.

"I have been investigating the arrangement of things below, Anderson," I said, in explanation; "rather odd way in which the yacht is cut up. Did you know there was a passage leading all the way aft?"

The boatswain shook his head, too surely naturally to answer.

"Well, possibly you know whether or not a similar passage leads forward into the fore-castle?"

"There's a bulkhead door over there," he returned, indicating by a gesture a spot concealed by the donkey pump, "but I don't know where it goes, only it's dark as hell."

"It comes out under the fore-castle, sir," broke in a coal heaver named Davis. "Leastwise there's a trap in the deck there, with a ladder leading down."

"I'll finish the trip through, then, for I like to know what is under my feet when I command a vessel. Where is the engineer, Anderson?"

"He waved his big hairy hand in the direction of the boilers."

"Went to his bunk to lie down for an hour; he was about all in."

"Are you capable of standing watch alone in an engine room?"

The fellow grinned, his bulldog jaw protruding.

"Well, I've had to do it on this trip whether I'm capable or not. That fellow can't stand it in here night and day without no rest. I know how to start an' stop her, an' watch the water gauge. If anything else goes wrong he's easy enough called."

So it was McKnight who was playing the antics of a ghost on board; McKnight who had discovered that unusual passageway through the bulkheads; McKnight who had conceived the idea that in this manner he could frighten us into turning back. Well, truly, I did not altogether blame the man, and now that my own fear of the supernatural was allayed, did not feel any desire to punish him severely. Still, his masquerade must stop before he thoroughly demoralized the crew frightening them beyond all my power of control.

I discovered the door concealed behind the donkey engine, left it slightly ajar behind me, and stepped forward into the black passage. I had groped along to the very foot of the ladder, feeling nothing but bare walls, and hearing no sound except the slush of bilge water, when suddenly an inarticulate cry sounded almost directly above, something, a hatch cover possibly, seemed to settle into place, and the ladder shook under my hand. I drew back a step, permitting the fellow to come down until he reached the floor. My eyes, accustomed to the gloom, enabled me to dimly perceive his shape. It was no more than a formless smudge he made, but I struck straight for what seemed to be the head, and landed with a force that dropped him like a log. In an instant I was on top, clamping the canvas sheet he wore tightly about his arms, and throttling him against the deck. He fought like a wild bull for a moment, thoroughly frightened and whimpering, dazed by the suddenness of an attack, yet following the animal instinct of a struggle for life.

"Damn you, McKnight, lie still!" I panted. "I've got you, and you might just as well take your medicine, my man. Yes, that's a gun you feel, and I know how to use it. So you're the ghost of the Sea Queen, are you? I guess you know what this means if I turn you over to those fellows, don't you?"

He groaned, and I ventured to release my grip on his throat, flinging back the canvas from his head.

"Sit up. Well, I'll tell you, McKnight—you would probably go overboard to feed the fishes. Do you recognize me?"

"Yes, sir," managing to find his voice for the first time. "You're Mr. Stephens."

"Right you are, and you can bless your lucky stars that I am the one who caught you. What started you at this trick?"

"It was the Chilean, sir, Sanchez; he said we could scare the whole outfit."

"Did he do any of the ghost playing?"

"No, sir; he didn't have the nerve, but—he rigged me up, and found out about these passageways."

"What was I to do with the man? Is truth there was little I dared to do under the circumstances."

"Now see here, McKnight," I said, soberly, "you quit this thing for good and all; if there is any more ghost walking done on the Sea Queen I'll turn you and Sanchez over to the men. Besides, there's no use resorting again to that sort of trick, for we're about at the end of our cruise."

"You mean we're going to turn north?"

"Yes. Now if I let you go will you behave yourself?"

GENERAL NEWS.

A press dispatch from Washington announced that John D. Rockefeller had abandoned the idea of securing a national charter for his proposed foundation. Starr J. Murphy, personal counsel for Mr. Rockefeller, and speaking for the Standard Oil president, said the statement was entirely without foundation. Mr. Murphy also said that Mr. Rockefeller had nothing to do with the "Economic and General Foundation," for which a charter is being sought from the New York legislature for "an aged man of wealth," said to have $2,500,000 to spend on charity.

Edward VII., king of Great Britain and Ireland and emperor of India, is dead. His illness, which lasted less than a week, became serious only three days ago. The king returned to England from a vacation on the continent ten days ago in the best of health. He had reigned nine years. He was sixty-nine years old. The Prince of Wales succeeded to the crown immediately, according to the laws of the kingdom, without official ceremony. He will take the oath of office before the privy council and will be proclaimed king as George V. His first official act was to dispatch to the lord mayor the announcement of his father's death, in pursuance of custom.

More than half of the male population of Palos, Ala., is believed to have perished as the result of the explosion in mine No. 3 of the Palos Coal and Coke company. About 200 men—45 white and 150 negroes—are thought to have been killed. Eleven bodies have been found.

Representative Lee O'Neil Browne of Ottawa, Ill., Democratic leader of the lower house of the legislature, was indicted by the special grand jury at Chicago on a charge of bribing Charles A. White, Democratic member from O'Fallon, Ill., to vote for William Lorimer for United States senator. The specific charge mentioned in each of the 11 counts of the indictment is that Browne paid White $850 at the Briggs house, in Chicago, on June 16, 1909, as part of a total bribe of $1,000. At the same time the grand jury returned indictments charging perjury against Representative Robert E. Wilson of Chicago and Michael S. Link of Mitchell. They are accused of having perjured themselves in testifying before the grand jury that they had not participated in the alleged "jack-pot" distribution at St. Louis, which was one of the features of the White "confession" on which the Browne indictment is based.

The horror of the great earthquake at Cartago, Costa Rica, is growing by leaps and bounds. The loss of life, at first estimated at 500, is now placed, according to the latest news from the ruined city, at not less than 1,000, and it may largely exceed that figure. Hundreds were seriously injured in the collapse of buildings. The property loss will amount to many millions of dollars.

William Randolph Hearst entered suit in the federal court against Henry Watterson individually, for $100,000, and the Courier-Journal for the same sum. The suit against Mr. Watterson is based on his editorial which, according to the petition, applauded the attack made on Mr. Hearst by Mayor Gaynor at the Press banquet in New York and "accepting as proven Gaynor's charges."

Fire, caused by an older child playing with matches, resulted in the loss of two lives at Deimling, Mich. The home of Matt Servis was destroyed and a three-year-old girl and an infant were burned to death. The parents were absent.

The Northern Baptist convention, comprising several denominational societies, opened its fourth annual session in Chicago.

King Edward is seriously ill. Sudden and unexpected announcement was made that the monarch is suffering from bronchitis, which causes anxiety to his physicians, three of whom are sleeping in Buckingham palace to be on hand in case of need.

Two companies of the state militia at Danville and Champaign were ordered to Danville, Ill., by Governor Deneen at the request of the sheriff of Vermillion county to assist that official in maintaining order in the Danville mining district.

The story of Representative Charles A. White that he was paid $1,000 for voting for William Lorimer for United States senator and that later he received $900 as his share of a general corruption fund or "jack pot" was corroborated before the special grand jury by Representative H. J. C. Beckmeyer of Carlyle.

A large part of Cartago, Costa Rica, was destroyed by a powerful seismic movement. Details are very meager, as the telegraph wires have been leveled between San Jose and Cartago. The operators at the latter place were killed. Five hundred persons are dead and fully as many are wounded. Half the houses in the city have been destroyed. Hundreds of men, women and children are homeless.

Forty-five white men and 90 negroes are entombed in No. 3 coal mine at Palos, Ala., as the result of an explosion. All hope for the entombed men has been abandoned. It is thought that any who escaped the explosion, which is believed to have been caused by gas and dust, have been suffocated by black damp.

"It was not a fair or truthful statement," exclaimed Secretary Ballinger during the Ballinger-Pinchot investigation, referring to a sentence in former Secretary Garfield's letter to the president last November, which read: "He (Ballinger) directed the reclamation service to prepare lists for restoring the withdrawn lands, but to do so slowly in order not to attract public attention."

Striking employees of the Columbus (O.) Railway and Light company voted to accept an agreement for peace proposed by Mayor Marshall, under which four discharged union men are to be given the option of returning to work at wages equivalent to their former pay or accepting employment under the city administration.

President Taft gave a vigorous denunciation of William J. Bryan for the letters of criticism of the appointment of Gov. Charles E. Hughes of New York as associate justice of the United States Supreme court. Mr. Taft declared the "cant of the demagogue" and the "disposition of public journals" to make unjust charges against men in public life. "All I am speaking for is justice and a square deal," he said, "not especially for myself, for, indeed, I am in a position where I can get along better than some of the rest without it. But I am appealing for justice in dealing with all classes."

Mr. Taft was speaking at a luncheon given by the Business Men's league in St. Louis.

See End of Man's Dominion

Whole Matter Settled by Four Women
Over the Tea Table.

The women, taking their tea by the club window, talked.

"They have a girl promoter at the Garrick theater," said one. "The manager told me last night that he'll have none but women promoters after this. Their fine, clear voices carry so beautifully across the stage, while at the same time they are quite inaudible in the auditorium."

"Of course," said another. "In teaching living languages, too, a woman is incomparably better than a man. A man has a thick guttural voice. His words are all mumbled and jumbled. But a woman's clear delivery—her open voice—gives every syllable its just value. In studying French or German or Italian, choose a woman, and your progress will be easier and faster."

"Norwegian horses," said a third woman, "are at once spirited and gentle. Do you know why? Because it is the women, the farm women, who break them. They make pets of them first; the colts feed from their hands and follow them about like dogs. After that their breaking is easy. It is only done by kindness. And the result is that Norwegian horses have the best dispositions in the world."

A fourth woman settled the whole matter.

"As mental power ousts muscular power," she said, "woman, save in such irretrievably brutal vocations as surgery or pig-sticking, will supersede man all along the line."

Origin of "Living on Tick."

The phrase, "living on tick," dates back to the seventeenth century, when a tradesman's bill was known as a ticket.

EDWARD VII. DEAD;
GEORGE V. RULES

Universally Lamented Monarch
Succumbs to Pneumonia.

WHOLE NATION IN MOURNING

Monarch's Death Occurred Before Subjects Had Realized That He Was Seriously Ill—Sketch of His Long and Brilliant Career.

Edward VII., king of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and of all the British Dominions beyond the Seas, emperor of India, as his full royal title reads, was born in Buckingham palace, London, on November 9, 1841, and was the second child and first son of Queen Victoria and the Prince Consort Albert. He was christened Albert Edward, and at his very birth was given an imposing list of titles. He was at once created prince of Wales and by virtue of that dignity he became also knight of the garter. As heir apparent to the British throne he succeeded to the title of duke of Cornwall and its emoluments, and as heir to the crown of Scotland, duke of Rothesay, earl of Carrick, baron of Renfrew and lord of the Isles. On September 10, 1849, he was created earl of Dublin, this title being conferred on him and his heirs in perpetuity. Among the other titles and commands held by Edward were duke of Saxony, colonel of the Tenth hussars, colonel-in-chief of the Rifle brigade, field marshal of the British army and field marshal of the German army.

THE LATE KING EDWARD VII.

The prince received a most elaborate, broad and carefully planned education. At first he was under the charge of four private tutors, and subsequently his education was directed Kingsley. In order to give him a taste of college life, he was sent for by Baron Stockmar and Charles one session to the University of Edinburgh, for one year to Oxford and for four terms to Cambridge. During these years he acquired a wide general knowledge of the arts and sciences and became quite proficient in modern languages.

In 1860 the prince made a tour of the United States and Canada and the next year he joined the British army at Curragh camp, Ireland. In 1862 he set out on his travels again, this time visiting Jerusalem and other places of biblical interest. His companion on the trip was Dean Stanley of Westminster.

Edward's public life began in February, 1863, when, as heir to the throne, he took his seat in the house of lords. On March 10 of the same year he married Princess Alexandra Caroline Mary Charlotte Louise Julia, the eldest daughter of King Christian IX. of Denmark. Her beauty, grace and charming manners at once gave her a popularity in Great Britain that has continued unimpaired throughout her life as princess and queen. In 1875-76 the prince made an extended tour through the Indian empire and was received everywhere with lavish and magnificent hospitality, the native rulers seeking to outdo one another in the gorgeousness of the entertainments provided for their emperor.

On the death of Queen Victoria, January 22, 1901, Edward succeeded to the throne. The coronation was set for June 26, 1902, and all preparations for the magnificent event had been completed when disquieting rumors of the king's ill health, which had been current for several days, were confirmed by the postponement of the ceremony. It was announced that the king was suffering from perityphilitis, and on June 24 he underwent an operation. After some weeks of the greatest anxiety he recovered, and the coronation took place August 9.

During the long years of his principality Edward's public duties consisted solely in the office of representing the royal family at all manner of public events, and he performed these duties well. But the deadly monotony of such a life was too much for the vigorous man, and he found relaxation in amusements that frequently gave rise to scandals and that gave the world a wrong impression of his real character. He was especially fond of the theater and among his boon companions for years were actresses and actors. Also he developed a great liking for Paris and often visited that gay capital incognito.

But all this, as has been said, was only his relaxation, and after coming to the throne his conduct always was so circumspect that not the most capricious critic could find any fault with it.

Edward was always a liberal patron of art and science and manifested a lively interest in exhibitions, charitable institutions, the housing of the poor, agriculture and other matters that concerned the welfare of his subjects. He assisted in promoting the Royal College of Music, and the Imperial Institute was due to his suggestion. While prince of Wales he carefully abstained from participation in politics and from all action that could be construed into preference of one party over another. He cultivated the most friendly relations with public men, whatever their opinions might be, and he was equally courteous to all. At peculiar crises of public opinion his visits to Mr. Gladstone, Mr. Bright and other prominent members of the liberal party did much to counterbalance in the public mind Queen Victoria's preference for her Conservative ministers. It was said that Edward always inclined to the Nationalists in Irish politics, but constitutional restrictions prevented his showing his preferences in relation to the Emerald Isle.

As a diplomat Edward was unexcelled among the monarchs of Europe. His influence was always thrown to the side of international peace where compatible with national honor, and his advice and example had a steady effect on all Europe. He looked with amused tolerance on the vagaries and extravagances of his nephew, the emperor of Germany, but occasionally that ruler exasperated him to such an extent that he could not refrain from giving him some stern advice. Such admonition was not received by William in a submissive spirit, and once in a while there were sensational rumors that the peaceful relations between the two countries were about to be ruptured.

The development of the king's character in his later years was especially gratifying to the nation. In addition to the love of his people, which he had always had, he gained their admiration and respect. They had the utmost confidence in his good judgment, as was amply exemplified during the late crisis over the budget, and they were always sure he would do the right thing at the right time.

To Edward and Alexandra were born six children. The first, Prince Albert, duke of Clarence, died in 1892, aged twenty-eight years. The second, George Frederick Ernest Albert, born on June 3, 1865, succeeds to the throne. The other children are: Princess Louise Victoria, married to the duke of Fife; Princess Victoria Alexandra; Princess Marie Charlotte, married to Prince Charles of Denmark, and Prince Alexander John, who died the day after his birth in 1871.

LINK CONFESSES ALL

LEGISLATOR, INDICTED AS PERJURER, BARES ALL TO GRAND JURY.

HIS TRUE BILL DISMISSED

Sensational Developments Come in Legislative Scandal After True Bills Are Found by Grand Jury Against Browne, Wilson and Link.

Chicago.—Confession No. 3 in the legislative bribery series was made Saturday before the special grand jury by Representative Michael S. Link of Mitchell. Aghast at the indictment for perjury voted against him Friday, Link went before the jurors and testified that he had bartered his vote on United States senator.

The barriers of silence and denial which the jurors for two days had vainly tried to pierce were shattered and, with husky voice, Link unfolded a story that corroborates all essential details of the confession made by Representatives Charles A. White of O'Fallon and H. J. C. Beckmeyer of Carlyle. The bribes which Link testified he had received as a member of the Forty-sixth general assembly were:

The sum of $1,000 for voting for William Lorimer for United States senator, payment being made in St. Louis by Lee O'Neill Browne, minority leader of the house.

The sum of $900 as his share in the legislative "jack pot," or general corruption fund, payment being made by Representative Robert E. Wilson July 15, 1909, in St. Louis.

Three indictments returned. Late Friday the special grand jury returned three indictments in the legislative bribery scandal as follows:

Representative Lee O'Neill Browne of Ottawa, leader of the Democratic minority in the house; accused of bribery on June 16 last in the alleged payment of $850 to Representative Charles A. White at the Briggs house in Chicago for White's vote on a contract and for his vote for William Lorimer as United States senator.

Representative Robert E. Wilson of Chicago, Democrat; accused of falsely testifying before the Cook county grand jury that he did not pay $900 each to Representative White and H. J. C. Beckmeyer at the Southern hotel in St. Louis on July 15 last as their respective shares in the legislative "jack pot."

Representative Michael S. Link of Mitchell, Democrat; accused of falsely testifying under oath before the grand jury that he was not in the Southern hotel at St. Louis on the day when Representatives White, Beckmeyer and Wilson testified he was present, being the occasion when White and Beckmeyer alleged the "jack pot" of $900 apiece was distributed by Wilson as the deputed agent of Representative Browne.

Penalties as provided by statute are imprisonment in the state penitentiary for from one to fourteen years on conviction for perjury and from one to five years' imprisonment in the penitentiary on conviction for bribery.

Bail in all three cases was fixed at $15,000 each. Caplases were ordered issued at once.

Link Makes "Clean Breast."

In immediate sequence to Legislator Link's "clean breast" of his bribe taking, the indictment accusing him of perjury was "nolled" by Judge Kersten on the request of State's Attorney Wayman, who in explanation informed the jurist that the defendant had retracted and thereby purged himself.

The move left Link in the same classification as White and Beckmeyer as beneficiaries of bribery, none of the three being under indictment. For the first time in three days Link left the criminal court building unattended by a detective and was allowed to go to his residence after promising to return if needed.

Link Outlines Agreement.

Link was hurried to the grand jury

Cancels Navy Yard Visit. Washington.—President Taft Thursday canceled his engagement to go to Brooklyn, N. Y., May 12 to attend the launching of the battleship, Florida and a banquet to be given by employees of the Brooklyn navy yard.

rooms early in the morning by the secret elevator from the offices of State's Attorney Wayman after he had made a preliminary confession to Wayman and had been told that if he would tell all he would be given immunity on the perjury indictment.

Link's confession touched directly on the Lorimer purchase of the senatorial seat and uncovered new angles of the state-wide corruption in which it is charged Democratic assemblymen sold their political birthrights.

New names of legislators who were interested in the Lorimer senatorial election also have been learned through the confessions of Link and Beckmeyer, whose stories corroborate in detail the original confession of Representative White.

Bomb to Browne and Wilson. Link's confession came as a bombshell to Browne and Wilson, the men who it is alleged distributed the senatorial election bribes and the "jack-pot" money, so far as these moneys appertained to the Democratic end of the bipartisan deal.

Browne and Wilson appeared at the criminal court building to furnish bonds on their indictments, returned Friday evening, just as the news of Link's confession came from the grand jury chambers.

Both plainly were worried, but Wilson seemed less concerned than the Ottawa legislator.

Both Browne and Wilson presented the same bondsmen, as follows:

"Johnnie" Powers, alderman of the Nineteenth ward, former state senator.

John J. Brennan, alderman of the Eighteenth ward.

In addition to these two Wilson's bond was signed by his brother-in-law, Francis J. Casey.

Tells of Primary Bribe Offer. Second only in importance to the indictments themselves was the unexpected and volunteered statement by Representative Joseph S. Clark that he had been offered a $500 bribe to vote against the direct primary bill in the Forty-fifth general assembly.

His statement came in an outburst of wrath when, following the indictments of his fellow legislators, he was again questioned by Assistant State's Attorney Arnold as to matters he had testified to before the grand jury.

"Twenty-five $20 bills were counted out before me in my room," said Mr. Clark, "and I was told they were mine if I would agree to vote against the pending direct primary bill. I refused and voted for the bill, as the records will show."

First Public Declaration.

This statement, advanced by Clark to demonstrate his claim of probity at Springfield, is the first public declaration that bribery was attempted in 1907 to defeat direct primary legislation.

Yes," said Mr. Clark after he had emerged from this ordeal with Assistant State's Attorney Arnold, "I did say that I had been offered a bribe to vote against the direct primary bill in 1907, but I do not care to have that statement published. The matter is now old and I merely mentioned it to show how I could have made money had I been so disposed at Springfield while a member of the legislature."

Lorimer Has Nothing to Say.

Senator Lorimer was told of the indictments while in the office of his new bank, the La Salle National, in the Rookery building.

H. J. C. Beckmeyer.

"Browne and Wilson have been indicted," he was told, "and so was Link."

"What," exclaimed the senator, "who in heaven's name were the witnesses who appeared before the grand jury in Browne's and Wilson's case?"

"The two men who confessed," he was told.

"Humph," said the senator, "they were the only witnesses, were they, against these men? Well, of course, I have nothing to say."

Attorney General Stead and State's Attorney Wayman were in close conference for two hours, the understanding being that they were considering the question of jurisdiction, and perhaps the question of immunity for White and Beckmeyer, whose confessions led to the indictments.

Close of Remarkable Campaign.

This convention marked the close of a remarkable religious campaign. During the winter and spring, missionary conventions were held under the auspices of the Laymen's Missionary Movement in 75 of the leading cities of the country. The campaign began at Buffalo on October 16. The gathering at Chicago was the climax of the series of conventions.

A national missionary policy was adopted. This policy will be sent to Finding of Fresh-Water Eel.

The straits of Messina are channels of immense depth, through which a wild form of whirling eddies have the effect of bringing up from the depths below many marine creatures which are rarely seen except in the deep sea trawls. It was here that the fresh-water eel was first discovered, an incident which threw a blaze of light on the life history of a very mysterious fish.—London Daily Telegraph.

Whole Country Is Stirred.

One of the most interesting reports at the recent meeting of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis was that of the executive secretary, Dr. Livingston Farrand, showing the growth of the anti-tuberculosis movement since May 1, 1909. The number of associations for the prevention of consumption has increased from 290 to over 425; the number of sanatoria and hospitals for the treatment of tuberculosis is from 298 to 400; and the special tuberculosis dispensaries from 222 to 265. During the year 1909, thirty-six out of forty-three legislatures in session considered the subject of tuberculosis, and in 28, bills were passed for the prevention or treatment of this disease. Since the opening of the legislative season of 1910, out of ten legislatures in session up to May 1, all have considered the subject of tuberculosis and every one of them has enacted some law that bears on this subject.

ROOSEVELT SPEAKS BEFORE NOBEL PRIZE COMMITTEE

Lecture on "International Peace" Is Delivered in Christiania---Ways in Which the Cause May Be Advanced Are Set Forth.

Christiania.—"International Peace" was the fitting topic selected by Col. Theodore Roosevelt for his lecture before the Nobel prize committee, which was delivered here Thursday. A large and distinguished audience listened to the man to whom was awarded the Nobel prize for bringing about peace between Japan and Russia. Mr. Roosevelt said:

Need of Industrial Peace.

It is with peculiar pleasure that I stand here today to express the deep appreciation I feel of the high honor conferred upon me by the presentation of the Nobel prize. The gold medal which formed part of the prize I shall always keep, and I shall hand it on to my children as a precious heirloom. The sum of money provided as part of the prize by the wise generosity of the illustrious founder of this world-famous prize system, I did not, under the peculiar circumstances of the case, feel at liberty to keep. I think it eminently just and proper that in most cases the recipient of the prize should keep for his own use the prize in its entirety. But in this case, while I did not act officially as president of the United States, it was nevertheless only because I was president that I was enabled to act at all; and I felt that the money must be considered as having been given me in trust for the United States. I therefore used it as a nucleus for a foundation to forward the cause of industrial peace, as being well within the general purpose of your committee; for in our complex industrial civilization of today the peace of righteousness and justice, the only kind of peace worth having, is at least as necessary in the industrial world as it is among nations. There is at least as much need to curb the cruel greed and arrogance of part of the world of capital, to curb the cruel greed and violence of part of the world of labor, as to check a cruel and unhealthy militarism in international relationships.

When Peace May Be Evil.

We must ever bear in mind that the great end in view is righteousness, justice as between man and man, nation and nation, the chance to lead our lives on a somewhat higher level, with a broader spirit of brotherly good will one for another. Peace is generally good in itself, but it is never the highest good unless it comes as the handmaid of righteousness; and it becomes a very evil thing if it serves merely as a mask for cowardice and sloth, or as an instrument to further the ends of despotism or anarchy. We despise and abhor the bully, the brawler, the oppressor, whether in private or public life; but we despise no less the coward and the voluptuary. No man is worth calling a man who will not fight rather than submit to infamy or see those that are dear to him suffer wrong. No nation deserves to exist if it permits itself to lose the stern and virile virtues; and this without regard to whether the loss is due to the growth of a heartless and all-absorbing commercialism, to prolonged indulgence in luxury and soft effortless ease, or to the defilement of a warped and twisted mentality.

Moreover, and above all, let us remember that words count only when they give expression to deeds or are to be translated into them. The leaders of the Red Terror prattled of peace while they steeped their hands in the blood of the innocent; and many a tyrant has called it peace when he has scourged honest protest into silence. Our words must be judged by our deeds; and in striving for a lofty ideal we must use practical methods; and if we cannot attain all at one leap, we must advance towards it step by step, reasonably content so long as we do actually make some progress in the right direction.

Now, having freely admitted the limitations to our work, and the qualifications to be borne in mind, I feel that I have the right to have my words taken seriously when I point out where, in my judgment, great advance can be made in the cause of international peace. I speak as a practical man, and whatever I now advocate I actually tried to do when I was for the time being the head of a great nation, and keenly jealous of its honor and interest. I ask other nations to do only what I should be glad to do for my own nation.

Treaties of Arbitration.

The advance can be made along several lines. First of all there can be treaties of arbitration. There are, of course, states so backward that a civilized community ought not to enter into an arbitration treaty with them, at least until we have gone much farther than at present in securing some kind of international police action. But all really civilized communities should have effective arbitration treaties among themselves. I believe that these treaties can cover almost all questions liable to arise between such nations, if they are drawn with the explicit agreement that each contracting party will respect the other's territory and absolute sovereignty within that territory, and the equally explicit agreement that (aside from the very rare cases where the nation's honor is vitally concerned) all other possible subjects of controversy will be submitted to arbitration. Such a treaty should insure peace until one party deliberately violated it. Of course, as yet there is no adequate safeguard against such deliberate violation, but the establishment of a sufficient number of these treaties would go a long way towards creating a world opinion which would finally find expression in the provision of methods to forbid or punish any such violation.

Work of Hague Tribunal.

Secondly, there is the further development of The Hague tribunal, of the work of the conferences and courts at The Hague. It has been well said that the first Hague conference framed a Magna Charta for the nations; it set before us an ideal which has already to some extent been realized, and towards the full realization of which we can all steadily strive. The second conference made further progress; the third should do yet more. Meanwhile the American government has more than once tentatively suggested methods for completing the court of arbitral justice, constituted at the second Hague conference, and for rendering it effective. It is earnestly to be hoped that the various governments of Europe, working with those of America and of Asia, shall set themselves seriously to the task of devising some method which shall accomplish this result. If I may venture the suggestion, it would be well for the statesmen of the world, in planning for the erection of this world court, to study what has been done in the United States by the Supreme court. I cannot help thinking that the Constitution of the United States, notably in the establishment of the Supreme court and in the methods adopted for securing peace and good relations among and between the different states, offers certain valuable analogies to what should be striven for in order to secure, through The Hague courts and conferences, a species of world federation for international peace and justice. There are, of course, fundamental differences between what the United States Constitution does and what we should ever attempt at this time to secure at The Hague; but the methods adopted in the American Constitution to prevent hostilities between the states, and to secure the supremacy of the federal court in certain classes of cases, are well worth the study of those who seek at The Hague to obtain the same result on a world scale.

Undue Growth of Armaments.

In the third place, something should be done as soon as possible to check the growth of armaments, especially naval armaments, by international agreement. No one power could or should act by itself; for it is eminently undesirable, from the standpoint of the peace of righteousness, that a power which really does believe in peace should place itself at the mercy of some rival which may at bottom have no such belief and no intention of acting on it. But, granted sincerity of purpose, the great powers of the world should find no insurmountable difficulty in reaching an agreement which would put an end to the present costly and growing extravagance of expenditure on naval armaments. An agreement merely to limit the size of the ships would have been very useful a few years ago, and would still be of use; but the agreement should go much further.

Finally, it would be a master stroke if those great powers honestly bent on peace would form a league of peace, not only to keep the peace among themselves, but to prevent, by force if necessary, its being broken by others. The supreme difficulty in connection with developing the peace work of The Hague arises from the lack of any executive power, of any police power to enforce the decrees of the court. In any community of any size the authority of the courts rests upon actual or potential force; on the existence of a police, or on the knowledge that the able-bodied men of the country are both ready and willing to see that the decrees of judicial and legislative bodies are put into effect. In new and wild communities where there is violence, an honest man must protect himself; and until other means of securing his safety are devised, it is both foolish and wicked to persuade him to surrender his arms while the men who are dangerous to the community retain theirs. He should not renounce the right to protect himself by his own efforts until the community is so organized that it can effectively relieve the individual of the duty of putting down violence. So it is with nations. Each nation must keep well prepared to defend itself until the establishment of some form of international police power, competent and willing to prevent violence as between nations.

AN INTOLERABLE ITCHING

"Just about two years ago, some form of humor appeared on my scalp. The beginning was a slight itching but it grew steadily worse until, when I combed my hair, the scalp became raw and the ends of the comb-teeth would be wet with blood. Most of the time there was an intolerable itching, in a painful, burning way, very much as a bad, raw burn, if deep, will itch and smart when first beginning to heal. Combing my hair was positive torture. My hair was long and tangled terribly because of the blood and scabs. This continued growing worse and over half my hair fell out. I was in despair, really afraid of becoming totally bald.

"Sometimes the pain was so great that, when partially awake, I would scratch the worst places so that my finger-tips would be bloody. I could not sleep well and, after being asleep a short time, that awful stinging pain would commence and then I would wake up nearly wild with the torture. A neighbor said it must be salt rheum. Having used Cuticura Soap merely as a toilet soap before, I now decided to order a set of the Cuticura Remedies—Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Pills. I used them according to directions for perhaps six weeks, then left off, as the disease seemed to be eradicated, but toward spring, eighteen months ago, there was a slight return of the scalp humor. I commenced the Cuticura treatment at once, so had very little trouble. On my scalp I used about one half a cake of Cuticura Soap and half a box of Cuticura Ointment in all. The first time I took six or seven bottles of Cuticura Pills and the last time three bottles—neither an expensive or tedious treatment. Since then I have had no scalp trouble of any kind. Standing up, with my hair unbound, it comes to my knees and had it not been for Cuticura I should doubtless be wholly bald.

"This is a voluntary, unsolicited testimonial and I take pleasure in writing it, hoping my experience may help someone else. Miss Lillian Brown, R. F. D. 1, Liberty, Me., Oct. 29, 1909."

CHICLE THE BASIS OF CHEWING GUM

EARLY three billion pieces of chewing gum are manufactured in the United States annually, practically all of which is made from one product of tropical America. This clearly accounts for the $1,500,000 in chicle, annually exported by our sister republics, and brings to light the workings of a most gigantic industry.

In the fifteenth century chicle was known to the intrepid Spanish explorers, who reported that the Indians employed the gum to quench thirst and relieve exhaustion; but the universal use of the gum can not be said to have begun until as late as 1876. Since that time the demand for this almost mysterious commercial commodity has increased to such an extent that importing firms have been obliged to search the markets and exploit the growing of the tree in order to obtain a supply sufficient to meet existing requirements.

Prior to 1888 chicle sold for from 7 to 8 cents per pound; in 1896 it sold for 36 cents per pound; and now it is selling for $2 per pound.

The tree, Achras Sapota, from which the chicle is obtained, is indigenous to northern South American countries, Central America, and in the Mexican states of Yucatan, Campeche, Tabasco, Chiapas, Veracruz, Oaxaca, Puebla, Jalisco, San Luis Potosi, and the territories of Tepic and Quintana Roo.

As yet the systematic cultivation of the Achras Sapota has not been carried on to any great extent, but experiments have shown that trees planted at a distance of 10 feet apart, or 400 to the acre, will yield from 5 to 6 pounds of chicle gum when from 8 to 10 years old and from 12 to 15 inches in diameter. In its wild state the tree is usually found in groups, frequently growing to a height of from 10 to 50 feet; it is straight, and has a long, clear length, thus making it most desirable for timber. While it grows well in a variety of soils, it seems to thrive best in a rich clay loam, with good drainage and an annual rainfall of about 90 inches. Lands well adapted to the growing of the tree vary in price from $3 to $15 gold, per acre, and are being largely dealt in at the present time.

The wood is of a reddish color, closely resembling mahogany, is quite hard, heavy, compact in texture, and fine grained. Prehistoric door frames and rafters of sapota wood are found among the Mexican ruins, and are still in an excellent state of preservation. This wood is today greatly in demand by cabinetmakers, who employ it in the manufacture of high-grade furniture and household fittings.

For many years the sapodilla pear, which also comes from the Achras Sapota tree, was a popular variety of fruit found in the markets throughout Latin America; but now, on account of the great demand for chicle gum and the attractive rewards offered for its gathering, the fruit is seldom dealt in by the natives.

The operation of gathering chicle and preparing it for the market is similar to that employed in the maple sugar industry in the United States.

Throughout the rainy season, and while the sap is up, the tapping is done by the chicle gatherers, or "chicleros," as they are called. Their outfit is most simple, and consists in nothing more than a piece of rope and a machete. By means of this rope, which is fastened about the waist and slipped around the tree, the chiclero is enabled to hold any desired position and wield the machete in cutting the incisions or gullies.

Great care must be exercised in tapping not to cut too deeply, as excessive bleeding of the sap will cause the rapid decay of the tree. It is possible for a chiclero to gather, properly, from 10 to 15 pounds of the sap per day, for which he is paid, in most cases, a contract price of from 10 to 15 cents per pound; but on many of the large estates an effort is now being made to effect payments for the labor by the day, week or month, and in this way prevent the destruction of the trees frequently caused by a greedy desire on the part of the chiclero, when under contract, to obtain as much sap as possible without regard to the injuries sustained by the trees.

In granting concessions to gather chicle in the national forest reservations, the Latin-American governments demand that natives shall be properly instructed in the gathering and preparation of the gum, as promiscuous tapping will not be longer tolerated.

In some instances trees have been tapped for 25 years, where care has been taken, although after that time they produced but from one-half to two pounds of sap. However, if allowed to remain untapped for a period of five or six years, they will then produce from three to five pounds of gum. Authorities differ in regard to the average height of the sapota, and the length of time

By RUSSELL HASTINGS MILLWARD

Australian and South African colonies are large and ever-increasing consumers. It is estimated by a prominent manufacturer that sufficient chewing gum is produced each year to supply every human being on earth with two sticks, and that the daily energy expended in the consumption of this popular masticatory is equal to that necessary to light a city of 250,000 inhabitants for the same period.

There are numerous factories scattered throughout the United States, where can be witnessed the interesting processes by which chewing gum is manufactured. The factories are sanitary in every particular, and methods of absolute cleanliness prevail in each department. An official report by the department of commerce and labor states that a chewing gum factory was the second cleanest plant inspected in the United States.

The process of manufacture consists in simply mixing and boiling the gum, in copper kettles, to a required consistency, and adding some flavoring extract, such as vanilla, peppermint, or wintergreen, and sugar, after which it is transferred to large centrifugal receivers. Here it is whipped into a dough, and afterward removed to tables and kneaded in powdered sugar. It is then rolled into sheets, cut to desired sizes, dried, wrapped by machinery in attractive papers, and placed in boxes ready for the market, the entire process being at all times under the closest inspection.

A visit to any of the chewing gum factories will convince the most skeptical that the product is nothing more nor less than a pure and wholesome article and absolutely harmless to its vast and faithful army of consumers.

PRIMITIVE METHOD OF BOILING THE CHICLE GUM

required for its maturity; but a general average height can be placed at from 25 to 40 feet, and maturity is reached at from 40 to 50 years. A tree 25 years old, and producing from 20 to 25 pounds of chicle each year, will measure 25 to 30 feet in height, and 22 inches in diameter.

In tapping the trees a V-shaped incision is cut spirally all around the tree, the arms of the cut extending upward, in order to permit the sap to flow freely to the bottom, where a receptacle is placed at the end of the gully. The sap has the appearance of milk as it flows from the tree, but it afterward takes on a yellowish color, and thickens until it is about the consistency of treacle.

After gathering the sap it is carried to the boiling sheds, and by a rather primitive boiling process is brought to the proper consistency. As the operation continues, it is necessary to knead the mass from time to time, in order to extract the water. The gum, if properly handled, will take on a light gray color, although there is considerable variation in the shades and colors of the products received from the different districts. In the old days much deception was practised by the chicleros, who, in order to increase the weight, would insert stones, bark, sand or wood in the boiling chicle, before it was formed into loaves. This clever deception is a thing of the past, however, as the contracts today call for a pure straight article, and there is little opportunity of adding any foreign substances.

Much of the chicle is shipped in rough, uneven loaves to the United States via Canada, where it is refined and dried out to one-half of its original weight, thereby saving 50 per cent. of the duty.

Under the Wilson bill the gum was admitted free; but in accordance with the tariff-revision act of 1897 a duty of 10 cents per pound was fixed, which is the present rate.

For the fiscal year ended June 30, 1909, there were imported into the United States 5,450,139 pounds of chicle, valued at $1,387,112, as compared with 929,959 pounds, valued at $136,402, in 1885. Repeated attempts have been made to mix, adulterate, or substitute chicle in every conceivable manner, but nature insists that the gum shall only be used to furnish unlimited molar action, and that it can not be artificially prepared by chemical or mechanical means. No medicinal use has yet been discovered for chicle; but in the manufacture of chewing gum various digestants, such as pepsin, have been added and the product pronounced by eminent medical authorities as pure, free from any injurious substances, and beneficial in the relief of various forms of dyspepsia and indigestion. In the strict sense of the word, chewing gum is an indigestible residuum, the user having the advantage of both the finest confection and a medicament as well. Its distribution extends in the Western hemisphere from Hudson bay to the Argentine Republic; in the east, from London to Hongkong; and the inhabitants of the

OCEAN MONSTERS IN BATTLE

Early on the morning of August 14 last, while engaged in building new quarters for the light-house keeper at Breaksea Island, near Rottneest, Western Australia, the contractor and his men noticed a bull whale with a cow and a calf passing the island some distance off.

An hour or so later—about nine o'clock to be exact—the men were startled by an extraordinary noise, apparently coming from the eastern end of the island, a noise unlike anything they had ever heard before. Dropping their tools and starting toward the east, they beheld such a sight as it falls to the lot of few people to witness. There, not 500 yards from the shore, was being waged a battle to the death—a fight between the great cow whale previously seen and a school of thresher sharks.

The sharks, as though acting in accordance with some preconcerted plan, had completely surrounded the two whales and, apparently realizing that nothing was to be feared from the calf, concentrated all their efforts upon the cow. Again and again they charged in upon her, their jaws snapping, tearing at her mighty sides until the sea was red with blood. Meanwhile the cow lashed her tail furiously, hurling up sheets of reddened water and occasionally crashing down with terrific force upon one of her voracious opponents.

Presently the spellbound spectators realized two facts: first, that the calf had disappeared in the mêlée, and secondly that the tortured whale was undoubtedly becoming weaker. It was obvious that the unequal struggle could have only one ending. Still, however, she fought on doggedly, winning admiration and sympathy by her exhibition of hopeless courage. Altering her tactics, by a supreme effort she hurled her whole great bulk clear of the water for a moment and the fascinated on-lookers beheld the sharks hanging from various parts of her gleaming body by their serrated teeth. Then down she went again with a crash like thunder and for an instant whale and sharks were buried amid masses of foam, heavily colored with the poor mammal's life blood. Rising again, she essayed another change of plan, making for the rocks and desperately striving to rub off the clinging sharks against their edges. But the threshers were equal to the occasion; while those on the outside maintained their grip, the others dived under their enemy and charged her anew, tearing at the whale's side in an ecstasy of ferocity that was bloodcurdling to witness.

More and more feeble grew the whale's struggles and at last—to the heartfelt relief of the spectators, for her death fight had been terrible to behold—the great body turned over and sank beneath the red-tinted water. The unequal battle was over.

WESTERN CANADA

What Fred. Shaw, the Well-Known Agriculturist, Says About It:
"I would never raise cattle in Western Canada than in the corn belt of the United States. Feed is cheaper and climate better for the purpose. Some farmers here will improve faster than your farmers will produce the same results. Wheat can be grown up to the 80th parallel 100 miles north of the Arctic Circle. Your vacant land will be taken at a rate that will make it pay. We have enough land in the United States alone who want homes to take up this land." Nearly 70,000 Americans will enter and make their homes in Western Canada this year. 1,000,000 acres of land are being offered for sale. Crop of wheat, oats and barley, in addition to which the cattle country is an immense item. Little raising, dairying, mixed farming and grain growing in the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. Free homesteads, pre-emption areas, as well as lands held by railway and land companies, will provide homes for millions. Adaptable soil, beautiful climate, splendid schools and churches, and good railroads. For settlers' rates, descriptive literature, "Last Best West" how to reach the country and other particulars, write to Dept. of Immigration, Ottawa, Canada, or to the Canadian Government.
